I. RELEVANT STATUTES

A. THE STATUTORY SCHEME

Immigration: Chapter 12 of title 8

8 U.S.C. § 1328 (Importation of alien for immoral purpose)

This statute forbids the direct or indirect importation (or attempted importation) into the United States of any alien for the purpose of prostitution or any other immoral purpose. It also prohibits holding or attempting to hold any alien, or keeping, maintaining, controlling, supporting, employing, or harboring any alien in any house or other place, for the purpose of prostitution or any other immoral purpose.

Penalties: Section 1328 has a statutory maximum penalty of ten years in prison.

Commerce and Trade: Chapter 103 of title 15

15 U.S.C. § 7704 (Other protections for users of commercial electronic mail)

Section 15 U.S.C. § 7704(d) prohibits sending, to a protected computer, an email message that includes sexually oriented material without including in the subject heading the marks or notices required, or providing that the matter in the message that is initially viewable to the recipient includes only required marks or notices, and among other things, information on how to access the sexually oriented material. This section does not apply to the transmission of an email message if the recipient has given prior affirmative consent to receipt of the message. “Sexually oriented material” means any material that depicts sexually explicit conduct (as that term is defined in section 2256 of title 18), unless the depiction constitutes a small and insignificant part of the whole, the remainder of which is not primarily devoted to sexual matters.

Penalties: This section has a statutory maximum penalty of five years in prison.

Obscenity: Chapter 71 of title 18

18 U.S.C. § 1466A (Obscene visual representations of the sexual abuse of children)

Section 1466A(a) prohibits knowingly producing, distributing, receiving, or possessing with intent to distribute, a visual depiction of any kind (including a drawing, cartoon, sculpture, or painting) that depicts a minor engaging in sexually explicit conduct and is obscene, or depicts (or appears to depict) a minor engaging in graphic bestiality, sadistic or masochistic abuse, or sexual intercourse (including genital-genital, oral-genital, anal-genital, or oral-anal). Such visual depiction must also lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value. This includes attempt and conspiracy.

Penalties: Section 1466A(a) includes attempt and conspiracy, and provides a cross reference to 18 U.S.C. § 2252A(b)(1) (see below) for penalties.

Section 1466A(b) prohibits knowingly possessing a visual depiction of any kind (including a drawing, cartoon, sculpture, or painting) that depicts a minor engaging in sexually explicit conduct and is obscene, or depicts (or appears to depict) a minor engaging in graphic bestiality, sadistic or masochistic abuse, or sexual intercourse (including genital-genital, oral-genital, anal-genital, or oral-anal). Such visual depiction must also lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value. This includes attempt and conspiracy.

Penalties: Section 1466A(b) includes attempt and conspiracy, and provides a cross reference to 18 U.S.C. § 2252A(b)(2) (see below) for penalties.

Peonage and Slavery: Chapter 77 of title 18

18 U.S.C. § 1591 (Sex trafficking of children or by force, fraud, or coercion)

Penalties: Subsection (b) provides for different penalties depending on whether the offense was effected by force, fraud, or coercion or, alternatively, if the minor had not reached the age of 14 years at the time of the offense. If the offense was so effected, there is a statutory minimum penalty of fifteen years and a statutory maximum of life in prison. If the offense was not so effected, and the minor was at least 14, but not yet 18, there is a statutory minimum of ten years and a maximum penalty of life in prison.

B. LEGAL ISSUES

18 U.S.C. § 1591 (Sex trafficking of children or by force, fraud, or coercion)

The mandatory minimum does not apply to conspiracy to commit sex trafficking under 18 U.S.C. 1594(c). 18 U.S.C. 1591(b)(1) imposes a 15-year mandatory minimum if the offense involved minors under the age of 14, or force, threats of force, fraud or coercion.<sup>1</sup>

18 U.S.C. § 2251 (Sexual exploitation of children)

A defendant does not have to produce the child pornography which he offers to advertise or distribute.<sup>2</sup> Whether an image depicts a lascivious exhibition of the genitals turns on the overall content of the visual depiction.<sup>3</sup>

<sup>2</sup> United States v. Williams, 659 F.3d 1223 (9th Cir. 2011). See also United States v. Christie, 624 F.3d 558 (3d Cir. 2010) Error! Main Document Only.(affirming conviction of a defendant under section 2251(d)(1)(A) for running a website that allowed file sharing of child pornography even though there was no personal production involved); United States v. Sewell, 513 F.3d 820 (8th Cir. 2008) Error! Main Document Only. (upholding conviction of a defendant who had used a file-sharing network to publish a notice to distribute child pornography).

<sup>3</sup> United States v. Wells, 843 F.3d 1251 (10th Cir. 2016) (finding the visual depiction does not need to portray the minor in a pose that depicts lust or sexual coyness for the defendant to be guilty of violating section 2251).

18 U.S.C. § 2252 (Certain activities relating to material involving the sexual exploitation of minors)

In Lockhart v. United States, 136 S. Ct. 958 (2016), the Supreme Court held that the phrase “involving a minor or ward” modifies only the phrase “abusive sexual conduct” immediately preceding it in section 2252. The required 10-year mandatory minimum under section 2252 therefore applies if the defendant has been previously convicted “under the laws of any State relating to aggravated sexual abuse, sexual abuse, or abusive sexual conduct involving a minor or ward,” and the defendant’s prior conviction for sexual abuse involving an adult victim, the defendant’s girlfriend, is a proper predicate offense for the mandatory minimum. On the other hand, a juvenile delinquency adjudication for criminal sexual conduct involving a minor is not a “prior conviction” and thus cannot serve as a basis for triggering § 2252(b)(1)’s mandatory minimum provision.<sup>4</sup>

18 U.S.C. § 2252A (Certain activities relating to material constituting or containing child pornography)

In United States v. Grzybowicz, the Eleventh Circuit held that § 2252A requires that the item being distributed must have been delivered to someone other than the person who does the delivering. 747 F.3d 1296 (11th Cir. 2014). Because the defendant sent images of child pornography from his cellphone to his own email account and then downloaded those images onto his own computer, with no evidence that he shared those images with anyone else, his conduct did not amount to “distribution” for purposes of a conviction under section 2252A. Id.

Peer-to-peer file sharing is sufficient for distribution, notwithstanding that the defendant did not actively transfer images, where the defendant admitted he knew that what was in his shared folder was available to others. United States v. Richardson, 713 F.3d 232 (5th Cir. 2013).<sup>5</sup>

18 U.S.C. §§ 2422 (Coercion and Enticement) and 2423 (Transportation of Minors)

For a conviction under §§ 2422 or 2423(a), prostitution or other illegal sexual activity must be one of the dominant or principle purposes for coercing travel or transporting a minor in interstate commerce, but it need not be the dominant purpose.<sup>6</sup> A

<sup>4</sup> United States v. Gauld, 865 F.3d 1030 (8th Cir. 2017) (en banc) (because Federal Juvenile Delinquency Act has long distinguished between adult criminal convictions and juvenile delinquency adjudications and because § 2252(b)(1) mentions only “convictions,” Congress did not intend juvenile adjudications to trigger that statute’s mandatory minimum).

<sup>5</sup> See United States v. Chiaradio, 684 F.3d 265 (1st Cir. 2012) (“When an individual consciously makes files available for others to take and those files are in fact taken, distribution has occurred” and the “fact that the defendant did not actively elect to transmit those files is irrelevant.”).

conviction for attempt under §§ 2422(b) or 2423(b) does not require proof that the intended victim is an actual minor, as long as the defendant believes that the victim is a minor. United States v. Spurlock, 495 F.3d 1011 (8th Cir. 2007).<sup>7</sup>

A conviction for violating §2422(b) can be sustained by a defendant who communicates with an adult intermediary to persuade, induce or entice minors to engage in sexual intercourse even if he does not seek to have any of his communications with the adult passed on directly to the child.<sup>8</sup>

A conviction for violating §2423(a) was affirmed after a defendant appealed claiming that the government had to prove that the defendant knew he was transporting a minor and it failed to do so. The court held that the context of §2423 compels reading that does not require “knowingly” be applied to the victims age. That reading is consistent with congressional intent that minors need special protection against sexual exploitation. Further, the court held that “age” in this section is not a factor that distinguishes criminal behavior from innocent conduct, but rather serves to justify a harsher penalty when a victim is underage.<sup>9</sup>

A. APPLICABLE OFFENSE GUIDELINE IS DETERMINED BY THE OFFENSE OF CONVICTION

The applicable Chapter Two offense guideline section is determined by looking up the offense of conviction in the Statutory Index (Appendix A). See §1B1.2 (Applicable Guidelines). For example, if a defendant was charged with enticing a minor to engage in sexually explicit conduct to produce a visual depiction of that conduct in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2251(a), but was convicted only of possession with intent to sell that visual depiction in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2252(a), apply §2G2.2 (applicable to 18 U.S.C. § 2252(a)), not §2G2.1 (applicable to 18 U.S.C. § 2251(a)).

For purposes of determining which offense guideline section is applicable where the Statutory Index specifies the use of more than one section for the offense of conviction, use the offense guideline section for the most specific definition of the offense of conviction. For example, if the defendant was convicted of § 2251(a), use §2G2.1, not §2G2.2.

<sup>7</sup> See United States v. Cote, 504 F.3d 682 (7th Cir. 2007) (“factual impossibility or mistake of fact is not a defense to an attempt charge”); United States v. Daniels, 685 F.3d 1237 (11th Cir. 2012) (holding that statute does not require defendant knew the victim was under the age of eighteen for conviction).

<sup>8</sup> See United States v. Caudill, 709 F.3d 444 (5th Cir. 2013).

B. APPLICABLE BASE OFFENSE LEVEL, SPECIFIC OFFENSE CHARACTERISTICS, AND CROSS REFERENCES ARE DETERMINED BY RELEVANT CONDUCT

Many of the subsections of the sex offense guidelines include the phrase “if the offense involved.” Section 1B1.1 defines “offense” to include “the offense of conviction and all relevant conduct under §1B1.3 (Relevant Conduct) unless a different meaning is specified or is otherwise clear from the context.” §1B1.1, comment. (n.1(H)). Section 1B1.3 states that the base offense level, any specific offense characteristics and cross references in Chapter Two, and adjustments in Chapter Three are to be determined on the basis of relevant conduct. Therefore, while the applicable Chapter Two offense guideline section is determined by looking up the offense of conviction in Appendix A, relevant conduct is important to the application of many subsections. For example, the specific offense characteristic at §2G2.2(b)(4) states “[i]f the offense involved material that portrays sadistic or masochistic conduct or other depictions of violence, increase by 4 levels.” That characteristic applies where a defendant is convicted of transporting non-sadistic child pornography if the court determines that the defendant’s relevant conduct includes possession of material that portrays sadistic or masochistic conduct, or other depictions of violence.

C. §2G1.1 (PROMOTING A COMMERCIAL SEX ACT OR PROHIBITED SEXUAL CONDUCT WITH AN INDIVIDUAL OTHER THAN A MINOR)

Appendix A refers to §2G1.1 certain offenses under 8 U.S.C. § 1328, 18 U.S.C. §§ 1591, 2421, or 2422. This guideline does not cover offenses involving minor victims.

1. Determining the Base Offense Level

---

If the offense of conviction is 18 U.S.C. § 1591(b)(1), the base offense level is 34. Otherwise, the base offense level is 14.

2. Specific Offense Characteristic: Fraud or Coercion

Section 2G1.1(b)(1) provides for a 4-level enhancement if the base offense level is 14 and the offense involved fraud or coercion. The fraud must occur as part of the offense and cannot anticipate any bodily injury. Absent bodily injury, an upward departure may be warranted. §2G1.1, comment. (n.2). For purposes of this subsection, “coercion” includes any form of conduct negating the voluntariness of the victim. See §2G1.1, comment. (n.2). Physical force is not required.<sup>10</sup> Coercion generally does not apply if the victim’s voluntary use of drugs or alcohol resulted in the impairment of the victim’s ability to appraise or control conduct. See §2G1.1, comment. (n.2).

<sup>10</sup> See United States v. Williams, 291 F.3d 1180 (9th Cir. 2002) (upholding the coercion enhancement even though the defendant did not use force to transport the woman across state lines).

For offenses under 18 U.S.C. § 1591(b)(1), fraud and coercion are built into the base offense level. Limiting §2G1.1(b)(1) to convictions other than those under 18 U.S.C. § 1591(b)(1) avoids unwarranted double-counting.

3. Cross Reference

Section 2A3.1 (Criminal Sexual Abuse; Attempt to Commit Criminal Sexual Abuse) applies if the offense involved conduct described in 18 U.S.C. §§ 2241(a) or (b) or 2242. For purposes of this subsection, conduct described in 18 U.S.C. §§ 2241(a) or (b) is engaging in, or causing another person to engage in, a sexual act with another person by: (1) using force against the victim; (2) threatening or placing the victim in fear that any person will be subjected to death, serious bodily injury, or kidnapping; (3) rendering the victim unconscious; or (4) administering by force or threat of force, or without knowledge or permission of the victim, a drug, intoxicant, or other similar substance and substantially impairing the ability of the victim to appraise or control conduct. See §2G1.1, comment. (n.4(A)).

For purposes of this subsection, conduct described in 18 U.S.C. § 2242 is engaging in, or causing another person to engage in, a sexual act with another person by (1) threatening or placing the victim in fear (other than by threatening or placing the victim in fear that any person will be subject to death, serious bodily injury, or kidnapping); or (2) engaging in, or causing another person to engage in, a sexual act with a victim who is incapable of appraising the nature of the conduct or who is physically incapable of declining participation in, or communicating unwillingness to engage in, the sexual act. See §2G1.1, comment. (n.4(B)).

4. Special Instruction

Section 2G1.1(d)(1) provides that if the offense involved more than one victim, Chapter Three, Part D (Multiple Counts) applies as if the conduct in respect to each victim had been charged in separate counts of conviction. Therefore, multiple counts involving multiple victims are not grouped under §3D1.2 (Groups of Closely Related Counts). See §2G1.1, comment. (n.5).

For purposes of this guideline, “victim” means a person transported, persuaded, induced, enticed, or coerced to engage in, or travel for the purpose of engaging in, a commercial sex act or prohibited sexual conduct (whether or not the person consented). See §2G1.1, comment. (n.1). See also United States v. Young, 590 F.3d 467 (7th Cir. 2009) (finding victims who were massage parlor employees were “enticed” into performing commercial sex acts when their income was confined to tips received for providing sexual massages). “Victim” includes undercover law enforcement officers. See §2G1.1, comment. (n.1).

5. Chapter Three Adjustments

For the purposes of §3B1.1 (Aggravating Role), a victim (as defined in this guideline) is considered a participant only if that victim assisted in the promoting of a commercial sex act or prohibited sexual conduct in respect to another victim. See §2G1.1, comment. (n.3).

6. Upward Departure Provision

If the offense involved more than ten victims, an upward departure may be warranted. See §2G1.1, comment. (n.6).

D. §2G1.3 (PROMOTING A COMMERCIAL SEX ACT OR PROHIBITED SEXUAL CONDUCT WITH A MINOR; TRANSPORTATION OF MINORS TO ENGAGE IN A COMMERCIAL SEX ACT OR PROHIBITED SEXUAL CONDUCT; TRAVEL TO ENGAGE IN COMMERCIAL SEX ACT OR PROHIBITED SEXUAL CONDUCT WITH A MINOR; SEX TRAFFICKING OF CHILDREN; USE OF INTERSTATE FACILITIES TO TRANSPORT INFORMATION ABOUT A MINOR)

Appendix A specifies offense guideline §2G1.3 for offenses violating 8 U.S.C. § 1328, 18 U.S.C. §§ 1591, 2421, 2422, (all with the requirement that the offense involved a minor victim), 2423, and 2425. The word “minor” in this guideline refers to an individual (including fictitious individuals and law enforcement officers) who had not attained the age of 18 (or who was represented to have not attained the age of 18). See §2G1.3, comment. (n.1).<sup>11</sup>

1. Determining the Base Offense Level.

Three of the four alternative base offense levels for §2G1.3 depend on the offense of conviction.

- a. The base offense level is 34 if the defendant was convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 1591(b)(1).
- b. The base offense level is 30 if the defendant was convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 1591(b)(2).

<sup>11</sup> See United States v. Vasquez, 839 F.3d 409 (5th Cir. 2016) (finding definition of minor does not include a fictitious minor held out by the defendant as available for unlawful sexual activity, where the defendant was not himself a law enforcement officer who was representing that the victim had not attained 18 years and could be provided.).

- c. The base offense level is 28 if the defendant was convicted under 18 U.S.C. §§ 2422(b) or 2423(a).
- d. Otherwise, the base offense level is 24.

2. Specific Offense Characteristics

a. Parent, relative, or legal guardian/care, custody, or supervisory control

Section 2G1.3(b)(1) calls for a 2-level enhancement if the defendant was a parent, relative, or legal guardian of the minor or if the minor was in the custody, care, or supervisory control of the defendant. The phrase “custody, care, or supervisory control” is intended to be broad, and applies whenever a minor is entrusted to the defendant, whether temporarily or permanently. See §2G1.3, comment. (n.2(A)). The enhancement applies only if there is a pre-existing parent-like authority that exists apart from the relationship forged during the crime itself.<sup>12</sup> If this subsection applies, do not apply §3B1.3 (Abuse of Position of Trust or Use of Special Skill). See §2G1.3, comment. (n.2(B)).

b. Knowing misrepresentation or undue influence

Section 2G1.3(b)(2) provides for a 2-level enhancement if the offense involved the knowing misrepresentation of a participant’s identity to persuade, induce, entice, coerce, or facilitate the travel of, a minor to engage in prohibited sexual conduct or if a participant otherwise unduly influenced a minor to engage in prohibited sexual conduct.

(i) Misrepresentation of identity. The enhancement for misrepresentation applies only to misrepresentations made directly to a minor or to a person who exercises custody, care, or supervisory control of the minor. Further, the use of a misleading computer screen name, without the intent to persuade, induce, entice, or coerce a minor to engage in prohibited sexual conduct does not prompt the application of this enhancement. See §2G1.3, comment. (n.3(A)).

The misrepresentation enhancement could still apply even if the defendant ultimately tells the “minor” his or her true identity.<sup>13</sup> The enhancement can also apply for misrepresenting marital status and occupation. United States v. Young, 613 F.3d 735 (8th Cir. 2010). The enhancement can also apply for misrepresenting prior or current sexual relationships with other minors.<sup>14</sup>

<sup>13</sup> See United States v. Holt, 510 F.3d 1007 (9th Cir. 2007).

(ii) Undue influence. The court should look at the facts of each case closely to determine whether a participant’s influence over the minor compromised the voluntariness of the minor’s behavior. §2G1.3, comment. (n.3(B)).<sup>15</sup>

The enhancement applies even if the offense has an element of force, fraud, or coercion because an “undue influence” can involve conduct with no force, fraud or coercion.<sup>16</sup>

Commentary to this enhancement provides that “[t]he voluntariness of the minor’s behavior may be compromised without prohibited sexual conduct occurring.” and further provides for a rebuttal presumption of undue influence if the participant is at least 10 years older than the minor §2G1.3, comment. (n.3(B)).<sup>17</sup> The undue influence enhancement does not apply if the only “minor” involved in the offense is an undercover officer. USSG §2G1.3, comment. (n.3(B)).

c. Use of a computer

Section 2G1.3(b)(3) provides for a 2-level enhancement if a computer or an interactive computer service was used to: (1) persuade, induce, entice, coerce, or facilitate the travel of, the minor to engage in prohibited sexual conduct; or (2) entice, encourage, offer, or solicit a person to engage in prohibited sexual conduct with the minor. This subsection applies only to communication directly with the minor or with a person who exercises custody, care, or supervisory control of the minor. See §2G1.3, comment. (n.4). The enhancement is appropriately applied when a computer is used in furtherance of sex trafficking crimes.<sup>18</sup> The enhancement is also appropriately applied if the defendant begins to pursue the victim while using a computer, even if no sexual requests were sent via computer and even if the minor does not yet recognize the defendant’s intent. United States

<sup>15</sup> See United States v. Daniels, 685 F.3d 1237 (11th Cir. 2012), cert. denied, 133 S. Ct. 1240 (2013) (holding enhancement applies even though minor was already working as a prostitute before meeting defendant; minor had initially declined to work for defendant, and defendant arranged to send her to another city to work, brought her to bus station and purchased her ticket).

<sup>16</sup> See United States v. Smith, 719 F.3d 1120, 1125 (9th Cir. 2013) (finding application of base offense level under §2G1.3(b)(2) and undue influence enhancement may both be applied because both provisions serve unique purposes). See also United States v. Willoughby, 742 F.3d 229 (6th Cir. 2014) (finding application appropriate when the offense of conviction was based on a violation of section 1591 and included force, fraud or coercion, because the term “undue influence” is not limited to force, fraud, or coercion and the application was based instead on the defendant’s manipulation of and preying on the victim’s status as a homeless, destitute runaway).

<sup>17</sup> See also United States v. Reid, 751 F.3d 763 (6th Cir.); cert. denied, 135 S. Ct. 766 (2014); United States v. Watkins, 667 F.3d 254 (2d Cir. 2012); United States v. Lay, 583 F.3d 436 (6th Cir. 2009); United States v. Miller, 601 F.3d 734 (7th Cir. 2010).

v. Lay, 583 F.3d 436 (6th Cir. 2009). The use of a cell phone to send voice mail and text messages directly to the victim is a “computer” for purposes of §2G1.3(b)(3), even though it was not used to connect to the Internet. United States v. Kramer, 631 F.3d 900 (8th Cir. 2011).

Although Application Note 4 states that the enhancement “is intended to apply only to the use of a computer to communicate directly with a minor or a person who exercises custody, care, or supervisory control of the minor,” the enhancement will apply if the defendant or a co-defendant uses the computer simply to post information about a minor.<sup>19</sup>

d. Sex act or sexual contact/commercial sex act

Section 2G1.3(b)(4) provides for a 2-level enhancement if the offense involved the commission of a sex act or sexual contact, or if the offense involved a commercial sex act and the defendant was either: (1) convicted under 18 U.S.C. §§ 2422(b) or 2423(a); or (2) convicted of any offense covered by §2G1.3 other than 18 U.S.C. § 1591. Offenses committed under 18 U.S.C. § 1591 are not included in this specific offense characteristic because they necessarily involve a commercial sex act.<sup>20</sup> “Sexual contact” can include the touching of one’s self.<sup>21</sup>

e. Minor younger than 12

Section 2G1.3(b)(5) provides for an 8-level enhancement if the offense involved a minor who had not attained the age of 12 years and the defendant was either: (1) convicted under 18 U.S.C. §§ 2422(b) or 2423(a); or (2) convicted of any offense covered by §2G1.3 other than 18 U.S.C. § 1591. Offenses committed under 18 U.S.C. § 1591 are not included in <sup>19</sup> See United States v. Jackson, 697 F.3d 1141 (9th Cir. 2012) (although the defendant directed two co-defendants to post photos of a teenage prostitute in an online advertisement on craigslist.com, application of the enhancement was appropriate, regardless of Application Note 4, because the plain language in §2G1.3(b)(3)(B) affords applies if offense involved use of computer to entice, encourage, offer, or solicit application if the offense involved the use of a computer to entice, encourage, offer, or solicit a person to engage in prohibited sexual conduct). See also United States v. Houston, 857 F.3d 427 (1st Cir. 2017)(upholding enhancement, despite “obvious tension” between plain text of the guideline and Application Note 4, which enhancement, note 4 was not intended to limit the enhancement’s scope and therefore posting on Backpage covered by enhancement notwithstanding commentary)(joining Second, Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, Eight and Eleventh Circuits).

<sup>20</sup> See United States v. Watkins, 667 F.3d 254 (2d Cir. 2012) (enhancement is not double counting because the statute prohibits travel with intent to engage in sexual activity and therefore one may violate the statute without actually having committed a sexual act). See also United States v. Hornbuckle, 784 F.3d 549 (9th Cir. 2015)(finding “[w]here defendants pleaded guilty to two counts of sex trafficking of children under 18 U.S.C. § 1591, there was no double counting in the application of a sentence enhancement under . . . §2G1.3(b)(4)(A) because commission of a sex act or sexual contact was not an element of sex trafficking of children under § 1591.”).

<sup>21</sup> See United States v. Pawlowski, 682 F.3d 205 (3d Cir. 2012) (affirming application of enhancement when defendant masturbated on webcam while chatting with someone he believed to be 15-year-old minor).

this specific offense characteristic because the age of the minor is already taken into account in the applicable base offense level.<sup>22</sup>

3. Cross References

a. Section 2G1.3(c)(1)

Section 2G1.3(c)(1) states that §2G2.1 should apply if the offense involved causing, transporting, permitting, or offering or seeking by notice or advertisement, a minor to engage in sexually explicit conduct for the purpose of producing a visual depiction of such conduct, and if the resulting offense level under §2G2.1 is greater than the offense level determined under this guideline. This subsection is to be construed broadly. See §2G1.3, comment. (n.5(A)).<sup>23</sup>

b. Section 2G1.3(c)(2)

Section 2G1.3(c)(2) states that §2A1.1 (First Degree Murder) should apply if a minor was killed under circumstances that would constitute murder under 18 U.S.C. § 1111 and if the resulting offense level is greater than the one determined under this guideline.

c. Section 2G1.3(c)(3)

Section 2G1.3(c)(3) states that §2A3.1 should apply if the offense involved conduct described in 18 U.S.C. §§ 2241 or 2242 and if the resulting offense level is greater than the one determined under this guideline.<sup>24</sup>

When the cross reference at §2G1.3(c)(3) is applied, the court can apply both the base offense level under §2A3.1 and the enhancement at §2A3.1(b) if the offense involved conduct described in section 2241.<sup>25</sup>

Veazey, 491 F.3d 700 (7th Cir. 2007) (“the cross-reference [in §2G1.3(c)(1)] applies when one of the defendant’s purposes was to create a visual depiction of sexually explicit conduct, without regard to whether that purpose was the primary motivation for the defendant’s conduct”); United States v. Bohannon, 476 F.3d 1246 (11th Cir. 2007) (application of this cross reference appropriate where the defendant arranged a meeting with the “minor” over the Internet and had a history of making visual depictions of other young girls).

Henzel, 668 F.3d 972 (7th Cir. 2012) (cross reference required where the defendant’s conduct involved conduct described in section 2242, and where defendant understood victim was in fear when he coerced her, resisted her efforts to move away, and ignored her repeated protests and cries).

The subsection's reference to 18 U.S.C. § 2241(a) and (b) means that all instances of sexual conduct involving the following will trigger the cross reference: (1) using force against the minor; (2) threatening or placing the minor in fear that any person will be subjected to death, serious bodily injury, or kidnapping; (3) rendering the minor unconscious; or (4) administering by force or threat of force, or without knowledge or permission of the victim, a drug, intoxicant, or other similar substance and substantially impairing the ability of the minor to appraise or control conduct. See §2G1.3, comment. (n.5(B)(i)).

Also covered by this subsection is conduct described in 18 U.S.C. § 2241(c), that includes (1) interstate travel with intent to engage in a sexual act with a minor who has not attained the age of 12; (2) knowingly engaging in a sexual act with a minor who has not attained the age of 12; or (3) knowingly engaging in a sexual act under the circumstances described in 18 U.S.C. § 2241(a) or (b) with a minor who has reached 12 years, but has not reached the age of 16 (and is at least 4 years younger than the person so engaging). See §2G1.3, comment. (n.5(B)(ii)).

Similarly covered is conduct described in 18 U.S.C. § 2242 that includes engaging in, or causing another person to engage in, a sexual act with another person by (1) threatening or placing the minor in fear (other than by threatening or placing the victim in fear that any person will be subject to death, serious bodily injury, or kidnapping); or (2) engaging in, or causing another person to engage in, a sexual act with a minor who is incapable of appraising the nature of the conduct or who is physically incapable of declining participation in, or communicating unwillingness to engage in, the sexual act. See §2G1.3, comment. (n.5(B)(iii)).

4. Special Instruction

Section 2G1.3(d)(1) provides that if the offense involved more than one minor, Chapter Three, Part D (Multiple Counts) should apply as if the persuasion, enticement, coercion, travel, or transportation to engage in a commercial sex act or prohibited sexual conduct of each victim had been contained in a separate count of conviction. Thus, multiple counts involving more than one minor are not grouped under §3D1.2 (Groups of Closely Related Counts). See §2G1.3, comment. (n.6). Each minor transported, persuaded, induced, enticed, or coerced is to be treated as a separate minor. Id. The grouping enhancement may be supported by uncharged as well as charged victims so long as the uncharged conduct satisfies relevant conduct principles.<sup>26</sup>

E. §2G2.1 (SEXUALLY EXPLOITING A MINOR BY PRODUCTION OF SEXUALLY EXPLICIT VISUAL OR PRINTED MATERIAL; CUSTODIAN PERMITTING MINOR TO ENGAGE IN SEXUALLY EXPLICIT CONDUCT; ADVERTISEMENT FOR MINORS TO ENGAGE IN PRODUCTION)

Appendix A specifies offense guideline §2G2.1 for offenses violating 18 U.S.C. §§ 1591, 2251, and 2260(a). The word “minor” in this guideline refers to an individual (including fictitious individuals and law enforcement officers) who had not attained the age of 18 years (or who was represented to have not attained the age of 18 years). See §2G2.1, comment. (n.1). “Distribution” includes posting materials involving the sexual exploitation of a minor on a website for public viewing but does not include the mere solicitation of such material by a defendant. See §2G2.1, comment. (n.1).

1. Base Offense Level

This guideline has one base offense level of 32.

2. Specific Offense Characteristics

a. Age of the victim

Section 2G2.1(b)(1) provides for a 4-level enhancement if the offense involved a minor who had not attained the age of 12 years, and a 2-level enhancement if the offense involved a minor who had attained the age of 12 but had not attained the age of 16.

Where victims of exploitation are infants or toddlers, §§2G2.1 and 2G2.2 provide for additional enhancement by adding an alternative basis for application of the sadistic or masochistic enhancement. Section 2G2.1(b)(4) provides for a 4-level increase “if the offense involved material that portrays (A) sadistic or masochistic conduct or other depictions of violence; or (B) an infant or toddler,” while §2G2.2 provides a 4-level increase “if the offense involved material that portrays (A) sadistic or masochistic conduct or other depictions of violence; or (B) sexual abuse or exploitation of an infant or toddler”. The required by §1B1.3 and application of the special instruction because of relevant conduct applies only to those offenses for which §3D1.2 requires grouping, and offenses under §2G1.3 are not contained on that list).

accompanying application note to each guideline clarifies that if subsection (b)(4)(B) applies, the vulnerable victim adjustment in Chapter Three does not apply.

b. Sexual act or sexual conduct

Section 2G2.1(b)(2) provides for a 2-level enhancement if the offense involved the commission of a sexual act or sexual contact, or (if greater) a 4-level enhancement if the offense involved both the commission of a sexual act and conduct described in 18 U.S.C. § 2241(a) or (b).<sup>27</sup> For purposes of this subsection, conduct described in 18 U.S.C. § 2241(a) or (b) is: (1) using force against the minor; (2) threatening or placing the minor in fear that any person will be subjected to death, serious bodily injury, or kidnapping; (3) rendering the minor unconscious; or (4) administering by force or threat of force, or without knowledge or permission of the victim, a drug, intoxicant, or other similar substance and substantially impairing the ability of the minor to appraise or control conduct. See §2G2.1, comment. (n.2).

c. Distribution

Section 2G2.1(b)(3) provides for a 2-level enhancement if the offense involved distribution. Distribution by a codefendant is attributable relevant conduct to a defendant who helped produce the images.<sup>28</sup> Distribution of images produced by defendant to another minor to induce that minor to create sexually explicit images of herself is relevant conduct in a conviction for attempted production.<sup>29</sup>

d. Sadistic or masochistic conduct

Section 2G2.1(b)(4) provides for a 4-level enhancement if the offense involved material that portrays sadistic or masochistic conduct or other depictions of violence. At least one court has held that “images involving an adult male performing anal sex on a minor girl are per se sadistic or violent,” United States v. Street, 531 F.3d 703 (8th Cir. 2008) and that “self-penetration by a foreign object qualifies as violence,” United States v. Starr, 533 F.3d 985 (8th Cir. 2008). As noted in section 2(E)(2)(a), supra, §§2G2.1 and 2G2.2 provide for additional enhancement pursuant to this section if the victim of exploitation was an infant or toddler. For a more detailed discussion of what constitutes “sadistic or masochistic” conduct, see section 2(F)(2)(d), infra.

Stoterau*, 524 F.3d 988 (9th Cir. 2008) (enhancement applied where the defendant’s relevant conduct included sexual acts undertaken by the victim that the defendant photographed, uploaded, and distributed); United States v. Boston, 494 F.3d 660 (8th Cir. 2007) (where the defendant touched the minor victim’s penis for sexual pleasure, the offense involved a sexual act or sexual contact).

e. Parent, relative, or guardian/custody, care, or supervisory control

Section 2G2.1(b)(5) provides for a 2-level enhancement if the defendant was a parent, relative, or legal guardian of the minor or if the minor was otherwise in the custody, care, or supervisory control of the defendant. This enhancement applies broadly and it includes offenses involving a minor entrusted to the defendant, whether temporarily or permanently. See §2G2.1, comment. (n.3(A)).<sup>30</sup> The minor can be in the custody, care or supervisory control of more than one person at a time.<sup>31</sup> If the enhancement in §2G2.1(b)(5) applies, the adjustment at §3B1.3 (Abuse of Position of Trust or Use of Special Skill) does not apply. See §2G2.1, comment. (n.3(B)).

f. Knowing misrepresentation of identity/use of a computer

Section 2G2.1(b)(6) provides for a 2-level enhancement if, for the purpose of producing sexually explicit material, the offense involved either: (1) the knowing misrepresentation of a participant's identity to persuade, induce, entice, coerce, or facilitate the travel of, a minor to engage in sexually explicit conduct; or (2) the use of a computer or interactive computer service to persuade, induce, entice, coerce, or facilitate the travel of, a minor to engage in sexually explicit conduct; or to solicit participation with a minor in sexually explicit conduct.<sup>32</sup>

The enhancement for misrepresentation applies only to misrepresentations made directly to a minor or to a person who exercises custody, care, or supervisory control of the minor. Further, the use of a misleading computer screen name, without the intent to persuade, induce, entice, or coerce a minor to engage in prohibited sexual conduct does not prompt the application of this enhancement. See §2G2.1, comment. (n.4(A)).

The computer or interactive computer service enhancement applies only to communication directly with the minor or with a person who exercises custody, care, or supervisory control of the minor. See §2G2.1, comment. (n.4(B)).<sup>33</sup>

<sup>30</sup> See also United States v. Alfaro, 555 F.3d 496 (5th Cir. 2009) (affirming the enhancement and concluding that the relationship between the 36-year-old defendant and his 15-year-old sister-in-law was "entrustful" even though the victim's mother did not approve of the victim spending time with the defendant).

<sup>31</sup> See, e.g., United States v. Carson, 539 F.3d 611 (7th Cir. 2008) (enhancement supported where the minor's mother and the mother's boyfriend had mutual custody over the minor during the minor's visits to their house).

<sup>32</sup> See United States v. Starr, 533 F.3d 985 (8th Cir. 2008) (affirming enhancement for defendant who lied about his age, based on application note 4, because misrepresentation was made with intent to persuade or coerce the minor to engage in sexually explicit conduct).

<sup>33</sup> But see United States v. Jass, 569 F.3d 47 (2d Cir. 2009) (enhancement does not apply where computer was used to show explicit material to desensitize minor victim to sexual activity rather than for solicitation purposes).

3. Cross Reference

Section 2G2.1(c)(1) states that §2A1.1 (First Degree Murder) applies if the victim was killed under circumstances that would constitute murder under 18 U.S.C. § 1111, and if the resulting offense level is greater than the one determined under this guideline.

4. Special Instruction

Section 2G2.1(d)(1) directs that when multiple minors are involved in the offense, Chapter Three, Part D (Multiple Counts) should be treated as though the exploitation of each minor had been contained in a separate count of conviction. Therefore, multiple counts involving the exploitation of different minors are not to be grouped under §3D1.2 (Groups of Closely Related Counts). See §2G2.1, comment. (n.5); United States v. Fadl, 498 F.3d 862 (8th Cir. 2007) (holding that the application of §2G2.1(d)(1) and §4B1.5(b) was not double-counting because §2G2.1(d)(1) punished the exploitation of different minors and §4B1.5(b) punished the exploitation of those minors on multiple occasions).<sup>34</sup> Relevant conduct principles apply however, and temporally distinct conduct must satisfy §1B1.3's requirement that the conduct be "during the commission of" or "in preparation for" the offense of conviction.<sup>35</sup>

If the offense involved more than ten minors, an upward departure may be warranted. See §2G2.1, comment. (n.6).

<sup>34</sup> See United States v. Peck, 496 F.3d 885 (8th Cir. 2007) (“[T]he separate enhancements for the number of minors Peck exploited and for the fact that Peck exploited the minors on multiple occasions are not premised on the same harm.”).

<sup>35</sup> See United States v. Schock, 862 F.3d 563 (6th Cir. 2017)(where no evidence that defendant photographed Victims 1 and 2 together on the date alleged in indictment, conduct in taking pictures of Victim 1 two years later not “during the commission of” or “in preparation for” the offense so multiple count analysis did not apply).

F. §2G2.2 (TRAFFICKING IN MATERIAL INVOLVING THE SEXUAL EXPLOITATION OF A MINOR; RECEIVING, TRANSPORTING, SHIPPING, SOLICITING, OR ADVERTISING MATERIAL INVOLVING THE SEXUAL EXPLOITATION OF A MINOR; POSSESSING MATERIAL INVOLVING THE SEXUAL EXPLOITATION OF A MINOR WITH INTENT TO TRAFFIC; POSSESSING MATERIAL INVOLVING THE SEXUAL EXPLOITATION OF A MINOR)

For violations of 18 U.S.C. §§ 1466A, 2252, 2252A, and 2260(b), Appendix A specifies that §2G2.2 will apply. Under this guideline, the word “minor” means an individual (including fictitious individuals and law enforcement officers) who had not attained the age of 18 years (or who was represented to have not attained the age of 18 years). See §2G2.2, comment. (n.1). Included in the definition of “minor” is an “undercover law enforcement officer who represented to a participant that the officer had not attained the age of 18 years.” Id.

If the defendant was convicted under 18 U.S.C. §§ 1466A(b), 2252(a)(4), 2252A(a)(5), or 2252A(a)(7), the base offense level is 18. Otherwise, the base offense level is 22.

2. Specific Offense Characteristics

a. Receipt or solicitation only

Section 2G2.2(b)(1) provides for a 2-level decrease if the base offense level is 22, the defendant’s conduct was limited to the receipt or solicitation of material involving the sexual exploitation of a minor, and the defendant did not intend to traffic in or distribute the material. Thus, the adjusted offense level will be 20 for those defendants who were convicted of receipt of child pornography with no intent to traffic in or distribute the material.

Distribution includes posting material involving the sexual exploitation of a minor on a website for public viewing, but it does not include the mere solicitation of such material. See §2G2.2, comment. (n.1). A decrease under this subsection may be denied when the defendant transported materials across state lines.<sup>36</sup>

<sup>36</sup> See United States v. Fore, 507 F.3d 412 (6th Cir. 2007) (holding that the defendant did not meet the second requirement of §2G2.2(b)(1) “because his criminal conduct was not limited to the receipt or solicitation of pornographic materials, but also encompassed the transportation of materials involving the sexual exploitation of a minor in interstate commerce”).

b. Minor under 12 years

Section 2G2.2(b)(2) provides for a 2-level enhancement if the material involved a prepubescent minor or a minor under 12. The pictures themselves can support the court's finding that the images are of children under twelve and that they depict actual children.<sup>37</sup>

c. Distribution

Section 2G2.2(b)(3) provides tiered enhancement scheme if the offense involved distribution. The greatest enhancement should apply.

(i) Alternative enhancements

(a) If the distribution was for pecuniary gain (for profit), increase the base offense level by the number of levels from the table in §2B1.1 (Theft, Property Destruction, and Fraud) corresponding to the retail value, but by not less than 5 levels.

(b) If the distribution was for the receipt, or expectation of receipt, of a thing of value (but not for pecuniary gain), a 5-level enhancement applies.

Distribution for this enhancement is any transaction, including bartering or other in-kind transaction that is conducted for a thing of value, but not for profit. A "thing of value" is anything of valuable consideration, i.e., child pornographic material received in exchange for other child pornographic material, preferential access to child pornographic material, or access to a child. See §2G2.2, comment. (n.1).<sup>38</sup>

A 2016 guideline amendment to §2G2.2(b)(3) addressed the application of the 5-level enhancement for distribution not for pecuniary gain in the specific context of peer-to-peer file sharing. Where previously some courts had held that the 5-level enhancement applied whenever a defendant knowingly used file-sharing software, United States v. Groce, 784 F.3d 291, 294 (5th Cir. 2015), the Sentencing Commission took a more restrictive view, directing that the distribution must be specifically linked to the valuable consideration and providing examples beyond the naked use of file-sharing programs, such as “receipt[t] in exchange for other child pornographic material, preferential access to child pornographic material, or access to a child.” Like the distribution enhancement, this commentary addressed the reach of the enhancement in the use of file-sharing programs. See Appx. C, Amendment 801, Reasons for Amendment. The changes to this subsection mirrored the changes to the obscenity guideline at §2G3.1, which has a similar tiered distribution enhancement.

<sup>38</sup> See also United States v. Whited, 539 F.3d 693 (7th Cir. 2008) (holding that phrase "expectation of receipt" does not require explicit agreement or precise bargain, and finding that district court did not clearly err in finding defendant distributed child pornography in reasonable anticipation of obtaining sex from another); United States v. Fowler, 216 F.3d 459 (5th Cir. 2000) (stating distribution enhancement appropriate if defendant distributed images with purpose of enticing another to have sex with him).

(c) If the distribution was to a minor, a 5-level enhancement applies. “Distribution to a Minor” means the knowing distribution to an individual who is a minor at the time of the offense. See §2G2.2, comment. (n.1); see also United States v. Wainwright, 509 F.3d 812 (7th Cir. 2007) (affirming district court’s application of enhancement based on numerous messages defendant sent to individuals who he believed were under 18 years because of screen names used by those individuals such as “Justified Facade-16yo”); cf. United States v. Fulford, 662 F.3d 1174 (11th Cir. 2011) (holding application of enhancement for distribution to a minor based on defendant’s belief that recipient was a minor was improper because enhancement only applies for actual minors or law enforcement officers represented to defendant as being a minor); United States v. Stevens, 462 F.3d 1169 (9th Cir. 2006) (holding that Commission’s expansion of definition of “minor” in Commentary to §2G2.2 on November 1, 2004, to include law enforcement officers was substantive change and therefore sentencing court erred in applying enhancement retroactively); cf. United States v. Hecht, 470 F.3d 177 (4th Cir. 2006) (pointing a web cam at 51 images of child pornography on computer screen and transmitting those images via Internet is distribution because it is an act related to transfer of material involving child pornography as defined in guideline).

(d) If the distribution was to a minor and was intended to persuade, induce, entice, or coerce that minor to engage in any illegal activity (except that activity covered by (E), below), a 6-level enhancement applies.

Allowing a minor victim to make print copies of child pornography qualifies as distribution to a minor. See United States v. Roybal, 737 F.3d 621, 623 (9th Cir. 2013) (finding application of enhancement appropriate where defendant permitted minor victim to make “book” of child pornography from his collection).

(e) If the distribution was to a minor and was intended to persuade, induce, entice, coerce, or facilitate the travel of, the minor to engage in prohibited sexual conduct, a 7-level enhancement applies. Distribution to a person who represents that he can provide a child to engage in sexually explicit conduct is distribution to a minor when the material is distributed with knowledge it will be viewed by the minor. United States v. Love, 593 F.3d 1 (D.C. Cir. 2010).

(f) Finally, if the distribution was distribution other than as described in (a) through (e), a 2-level enhancement applies.

Enhancements for distribution may only be imposed upon a showing of mens rea. Specifically, the 2-level enhancement set forth in §2G2.2(b)(3)(F) provides that the enhancement applies only if “the defendant knowingly engaged in distribution.” Application Note 2 states that the 2-level distribution enhancement applies only if the defendant knowingly “committed, aided, abetted, counseled, commanded, induced, procured, or willfully caused the distribution, or conspired to distribute.” The intent of the commentary is to avoid the imposition of enhancement where a defendant unwittingly makes child pornography available to others through use of a peer-to-peer file-sharing program. See Appx. C, Amendment 801, Reasons for Amendment.

The mens rea requirement for the distribution enhancement appears in the parallel provisions of §2G2.1(b)(3) and the obscenity guideline, §2G3.1 (Importing, Mailing, or Transporting Obscene Matter; Transferring Obscene Matter to a Minor; Misleading Domain Names), which likewise contains the tiered distribution enhancement scheme.

(ii) Double counting.

It is not double counting to apply the distribution enhancement in a conviction for distribution of child pornography.<sup>39</sup>

d. Sadistic or masochistic conduct

Section 2G2.2(b)(4) provides for a 4-level enhancement if the material involved in the offense portrayed sadistic or masochistic conduct or other depictions of violence, or an alternative enhancement if the images portray sexual abuse or exploitation of an infant or toddler. Unlike the distribution enhancement, this enhancement applies regardless of whether the defendant specifically intended to possess, receive, or distribute such materials. See §2G2.2, comment (n.3). This enhancement does not require a determination of whether the defendant intended to possess the images or actually derived pleasure from viewing the images.<sup>40</sup> The enhancement applies even if the sadistic or masochistic sexual conduct depicted was directed at the defendant involved in the sexual activity rather than the victim.<sup>41</sup>

(i) Pain/violence/penetration.

Courts have held that an image's portrayal of sadistic conduct includes portrayal of conduct a viewer would likely think is causing physical or emotional pain to a depicted young child. See United States v. Pappas, 715 F.3d 225 (8th Cir. 2013) (finding video showing victim being vaginally and anally penetrated "particularly distressing" and sufficient for enhancement); United States v. Maurer, 639 F.3d 72 (3d Cir. 2011) (finding images that depict sexual activity involving a prepubescent minor and that depict activity that would have caused pain to the minor sufficient for the enhancement). A video does not have to depict ongoing violent conduct to be "sadistic" if the evidence is sufficient to show that the defendant inflicted pain upon the victim. See United States v. Cannon, 703 F.3d 407 (8th Cir. 2013).

A portrayal of a young child experiencing physical or emotional pain includes the penetration of a young child by an adult. See, e.g., United States v. Hoey, 508 F.3d 687 (1st Cir. 2007); United States v.

<sup>39</sup> See United States v. Reingold, 731 F.3d 204 (2d Cir. 2013) (remanding where district court held that any harm associated with distribution was fully accounted for in base offense level); see also United States v. Chiaradio, 684 F.3d 265 (1st Cir. 2012).

<sup>40</sup> See United States v. Maurer, 639 F.3d 72 (3d Cir. 2011) (Section 2G2.2(b)(4) is applied on basis of strict liability).

Johnson, 450 F.3d 831 (8th Cir. 2006); United States v. Myers, 355 F.3d 1040 (7th Cir. 2004); United States v. Wright, 373 F.3d 935 (9th Cir. 2004); United States v. Kimler, 335 F.3d 1132 (10th Cir. 2003); United States v. Lyckman, 235 F.3d 234 (5th Cir. 2000). Images showing an attempt by an adult male to penetrate a young child have also been found to be “sadistic” or “violent” for purposes of this enhancement. See United States v. Belflower, 390 F.3d 560 (8th Cir. 2004) (stating that images showing an attempt to penetrate a young child “bespeak a sadistic intent to achieve sexual pleasure through the necessarily violent depiction of a minor as either a sexual object ripe for or deserving of sexual exploitation, or as a sexual subject desirous of and complicit in his or her own sexual exploitation”). Digitally morphed child pornography images depicting an identifiable minor’s head super-imposed onto the body of an adult female handcuffed and shackled wearing a collar and leash have been found to be sadistic. See United States v. Hotaling, 634 F.3d 725 (2d Cir. 2011) (finding the image portrayed both sexual activity involving a minor and sadistic conduct, which includes the likely infliction of pain, and portrayed a situation that involved physical and mental cruelty).

(ii) Relevant conduct.

An enhancement under §2G2.2(b)(4) can be based on relevant conduct such as visual depictions found in the defendant’s possession that are not part of the charged conduct in the indictment. See United States v. Ellison, 113 F.3d 77 (7th Cir. 1997); United States v. Hoey, 508 F.3d 687 (1st Cir. 2007). See also United States v. Barevich, 445 F.3d 956 (7th Cir. 2006); United States v. Belflower, 390 F.3d 560 (8th Cir. 2004) (Citing United States v. Stulock, 308 F.3d 922 (8th Cir. 2002). But see United States v. Fowler, 216 F.3d 459 (5th Cir. 2000) (possession of images of sadistic conduct is not relevant conduct if the defendant was convicted of transporting and shipping child pornography and there was no evidence showing that the defendant ever thought about sending the sadistic images to anyone).

e. Pattern of activity

Section 2G2.2(b)(5) provides a 5-level enhancement if the defendant engaged in a pattern of activity that involved the sexual abuse or exploitation of a minor.

“Pattern of activity” is defined as any combination of two or more separate instances of the sexual abuse or sexual exploitation of a minor by the defendant, whether or not the abuse or exploitation occurred during the course of the offense, involved the same minor, or resulted in a conviction for such conduct. See §2G2.2, comment. (n.1).<sup>42</sup> Evidence of an intent to continue abusing minors in the future, combined with evidence of past sexual abuse, is sufficient for imposition of the enhancement.<sup>43</sup>

“Sexual abuse or exploitation” means conduct described in 18 U.S.C. §§ 2241, 2242, 2243, 2251, 2251A, 2260(b), 2421, 2422, 2423, an offense under state law that would have been an offense under federal law if there was jurisdiction, or an attempt or conspiracy to commit any of these offenses. It does not include possession, receipt, or trafficking in material relating to the sexual abuse or exploitation of a minor. See §2G2.2, comment (n.1).

A conviction taken into account under subsection (b)(5) is not excluded from consideration of whether that conviction receives criminal history points pursuant to Chapter Four, Part A (Criminal History). See §2G2.2, comment. (n.3).

(i) No temporal limit on prior conduct.

See United States v. Alberts, 859 F.3d 979 (11th Cir. 2017)(district court properly based enhancement on the basis of 35-year-old conduct that occurred when defendant a teenager); United States v. Reingold, 731 F.3d 204 (2d Cir. 2013) (conduct by defendant as a juvenile is properly considered); United States v. Woodward, 694 F.3d 950 (8th Cir. 2012) (19 year old juvenile adjudication for sexual abuse of two minors can be used as basis for enhancement); United States v. Lucero, 747 F.3d 1242 (10th Cir. 2014) (finding application appropriate where defendant molested nieces 35 years before offense). Application Note 1 also specifies that the pattern of abuse need not be related to the offense of conviction. See §2G2.2 (n. 1).

(ii) Expanded relevant conduct.

The definition of “pattern of activity” in Application Note 1 allows for the court to consider expanded relevant conduct. See United States v. Bacon, 646 F.3d 218 (5th Cir. 2011) (finding <sup>42</sup> United States v. Alberts, 859 F.3d 979 (11th Cir. 2017)(proper to base enhancement on admissions by defendant that he engaged in sexual acts with younger relatives when he was approximately 16 years old); United States v. Paull, 551 F.3d 516 (6th Cir. 2009) (affirming the district court’s decision to apply the 5-level enhancement in a case in which the defendant’s neighbor wrote a letter to the court detailing specific allegations of sexual abuse perpetrated by the defendant against the neighbor when the neighbor was a minor); United States v. Rothenberg, 610 F.3d 621 (11th Cir. 2010) (holding application of the 5-level enhancement under §2G2.2(b)(5) and the 5-level enhancement under §4B1.5(b)(1) were appropriate where the defendant had two different online conversations with other adults in which he coached the adults on how to sexually abuse minors).

---

“relevant conduct” under §2G2.2 is intended to be more broadly construed than the general relevant conduct provision in §1B1.3); United States v. Williamson, 439 F.3d 1125 (9th Cir. 2006) (the pattern of activity enhancement was applied under expanded relevant conduct rules because the defendant, convicted of trafficking, had sexually abused his own granddaughter when she was four to five years old and had created child pornography of the abuse).

(iii) Conduct must have been sexually explicit, but it includes attempt.

Compare United States v. Gleich, 397 F.3d 608 (8th Cir. 2005) (holding that a “mooning” picture of a minor did not constitute an instance of sexual exploitation because the buttocks is a non-genital region and therefore does not meet the definition of “sexually explicit conduct”); with United States v. Sommerville, 276 F. App’x 903 (11th Cir. 2008) (unpub) (upholding the application of the enhancement where the district court found that the defendant had, on two different occasions, spoken online with agents posed as mothers of minor children, had proposed meeting to have sex with the mothers and their minor children, and had sent them images and a video of child pornography).

f. Use of a computer

Section 2G2.2(b)(6) provides for a 2-level enhancement if the offense involved the use of a computer or an interactive computer service for the possession, transmission, receipt, or distribution of the material. Attempts to delete the images do not bar imposition of the enhancement. See United States v. Glasgow, 682 F.3d 1107 (8th Cir. 2012). It is not double counting to apply the use of a computer enhancement to a distribution offense using a file-sharing program because the use of a computer was not essential to the act of distributing. See United States v. Reingold, 731 F.3d 204, 226 (2d Cir. 2013) (finding enhancement proper because it did not reflect a harm already fully accounted for in the base offense level).

g. Number of images

Section 2G2.2(b)(7) provides different enhancements for the number of images the offense involved. If the offense involved:

- at least ten but less than 150 images, there is a 2-level enhancement.
- at least 150 images, but less than 300 there is a 3-level enhancement.
- at least 300 images, but less than 600 there is a 4-level enhancement
- 600 or more images, there is a 5-level enhancement.

“Image” means any visual depiction that constitutes child pornography. See §2G2.2, comment. (n.4(A)). Each photograph, picture, computer or computer-generated image, or similar visual depiction is considered one image. United States v. Price, 711 F.3d 455 (4th Cir. 2013). See also, United States v. Sampson, 606 F.3d 505 (8th Cir. 2010) (affirming counting the same video twice, for a total of 150 images, because both acts of distribution compound the original sexual exploitation of the minor). Both duplicate hard copy images and duplicate digital images are to be counted separately. United States v. McNerney, 636 F.3d 772 (6th Cir. 2011); United States v. Ardolf, 683 F.3d 894 (8th Cir. 2012). If the number of images substantially underrepresents the number of minors depicted, an upward departure may be warranted. §2G2.2, comment. (n.4(B)(i)). Each video, video-clip, movie, or similar recording is considered to have 75 images. If the recording is substantially longer than five minutes, an upward departure may be warranted. §2G2.2, comment. (n.4(B)(ii)). An attempt to obtain pornographic videos is sufficient to support the enhancement under this subsection. See United States v. Gnavi, 474 F.3d 532 (8th Cir. 2007) (finding the enhancement appropriate where the defendant had attempted to receive a pornographic video, but holding that merely expressing interest is not enough). Possession of additional images not distributed may not be relevant conduct to a distribution conviction. See United States v. Teuschler, 689 F.3d 397 (5th Cir. 2012) (finding possession of non-distributed images did not occur in preparation for the offense, during the offense, or in an attempt to avoid detection of the offense).

3. Cross Reference

Section 2G2.2(c)(1) states that §2G2.1 applies if the offense involved causing, transporting, permitting, or offering or seeking by notice or advertisement, a minor to engage in sexually explicit conduct for the purpose of producing a visual depiction of such conduct, and if the resulting offense level is greater than the one resulting from this guideline. The cross reference should be applied broadly. See §2G2.2, comment. (n.5).

Most issues under this subsection deal with what constitutes relevant conduct. See, e.g., United States v. Bauer, 626 F.3d 1004 (8th Cir. 2010) (finding application of the cross reference appropriate where there was an offer to purchase a webcam to send to the victim and the defendant sent money for the purchase); United States v. Stoterau, 524 F.3d 988 (9th Cir. 2008) (applying the cross reference to §2G2.1 “because [the defendant’s] offense conduct involved posing and photographing [the victim] as he engaged in sexually explicit conduct”); United States v. Garcia, 411 F.3d 1173 (10th Cir. 2005) (stating that the cross reference to §2G2.1 is to be construed broadly and should be applied to “not only the actual production of child pornography, but the active solicitation for the production of such images”).

If the defendant engaged in the sexual abuse or exploitation of a minor at any time (whether or not it occurred during the course of the offense or resulted in a conviction), and subsection (b)(5) (Pattern of Activity Involving the Sexual Abuse or Exploitation of a Minor) does not apply, an upward departure may be warranted. An upward departure may also be warranted if subsection (b)(5) does apply, but that enhancement does not adequately reflect the seriousness of the sexual abuse or exploitation involved. See §2G2.2, comment. (n.7).

G. §2G2.3 (SELLING OR BUYING OF CHILDREN FOR USE IN THE PRODUCTION OF PORNOGRAPHY)

Appendix A specifies offense guideline §2G2.3 for offenses violating 18 U.S.C. § 2251A.

1. Base Offense Level

---

The base offense level for this guideline is 38.

Note. The statutory minimum sentence for a defendant convicted under § 2251A is now 30 years in prison.

H. §2G2.5 (RECORDKEEPING OFFENSES INVOLVING THE PRODUCTION OF SEXUALLY EXPLICIT MATERIALS; FAILURE TO PROVIDE REQUIRED MARKS IN COMMERCIAL ELECTRONIC EMAIL)

Appendix A specifies offense guideline §2G2.5 for offenses violating 15 U.S.C. § 7704(d) and 18 U.S.C. §§ 2257 and 2257A.

1. Base Offense Level

---

The base offense level under this guideline is 6.

2. Cross References

Section 2G2.1 applies if the offense reflected an effort to conceal a substantive offense that involved causing, transporting, permitting, or offering or seeking by notice or advertisement, a minor to engage in sexually explicit conduct for the purpose of producing a visual depiction of such conduct. See §2G2.5(b)(1). Section 2G2.2 applies if the offense reflected an effort to conceal a substantive offense that involved trafficking in material involving the sexual exploitation of a minor. See §2G2.5(b)(2).

I. §2G2.6 (CHILD EXPLOITATION ENTERPRISES)

Appendix A specifies offense guideline §2G2.6 for offenses violating 18 U.S.C. § 2252A(g). For purposes of this guideline, the term “minor” means an individual (including fictitious individuals and law enforcement officers) who had not attained the age of 18 years (or who was represented to have not attained the age of 18 years). See §2G2.6, comment. (n.1).

1. Base Offense Level

This guideline has a base offense level of 35.

2. Specific Offense Characteristics

a. Age of the victim

Section 2G2.6(b)(1) provides for a 4-level enhancement if the victim had not reached 12 years. It provides for a 2-level enhancement if the victim had reached 12, but had not reached the age of 16.

b. Parent, relative, guardian/custody, care, or supervisory control

Section 2G2.6(b)(2) provides for a 2-level enhancement if the defendant was a parent, relative, or legal guardian of a minor victim or if the minor victim was otherwise in the custody, care, or supervisory control of the defendant. This subsection is to be applied broadly and applies whenever the minor is entrusted to the defendant, whether temporarily or permanently. See §2G2.6 comment. (n.2(A)). If subsection (b)(2) applies, the Chapter Three adjustment at §3B1.3 (Abuse of Position of Trust or Use of Special Skill) does not apply. See §2G2.6 comment. (n.2(B)).

c. Conduct described in 18 U.S.C. § 2241(a) or (b)

Section 2G2.6(b)(3) provides for a 2-level enhancement if the offense involved conduct described in 18 U.S.C. § 2241(a) or (b). For purposes of this subsection, conduct described in 18 U.S.C. § 2241(a) or (b) is: (1) using force against the minor; (2) threatening or placing the minor in fear that any person will be subjected to death, serious bodily injury, or kidnapping; (3) rendering the minor unconscious; or (4) administering by force or threat of force, or without knowledge or permission of the victim, a drug, intoxicant, or other similar substance and substantially impairing the ability of the minor to appraise or control conduct. See §2G2.6, comment. (n.3).

d. Use of a computer

Section 2G2.6(b)(4) provides for a 2-level enhancement if a computer or interactive computer service was used in furtherance of the offense.

III. CHAPTER THREE: ADJUSTMENTS

A. §3A1.1(b) (VULNERABLE VICTIM)

Section 3A1.1(b)(1) provides for a 2-level adjustment if the defendant knew or should have known that a victim of the offense was a vulnerable victim. Further, §3A1.1(b)(2) provides that if (b)(1) applies and the offense involved a large number of vulnerable victims, the offense level should be adjusted another 2 levels.

For purposes of this subsection, “vulnerable victim” means a person who is a victim of the offense of conviction and any conduct for which the defendant is accountable under §1B1.3 (Relevant Conduct) and who is unusually vulnerable due to age, physical or mental condition, or who is otherwise particularly susceptible to the criminal conduct. §3A1.1, comment. (n. 2).<sup>44</sup> The enhancement can apply to defendants convicted of receipt, distribution, or possession of child pornography offenses.<sup>45</sup>

<sup>44</sup> See United States v. Arsenault, 833 F.3d 24 (1st Cir. 2016) (finding application of the adjustment appropriate because two of defendant’s victims (students in his special needs program) under the age of 12 were unusually vulnerable due to their special needs, where one minor had autism and the other was non-verbal); United States v. Robinson, 436 F. App’x 82 (3d Cir. 2011) (unpub) (affirming application of §3A1.1 where conspirators targeted minor girls for prostitution, one with a cognitive impairment, and others who were homeless and from troubled families); United States v. Holt, 510 F.3d 1007 (9th Cir. 2007) (finding that the application of the adjustment under §3A1.1(b) and an enhancement based on sadistic conduct was not impermissible double-counting because “the enhancements . . . account for distinct characteristics of the crime: the sadistic conduct enhancement accounts for the pleasure necessarily experienced by the perpetrator, while the vulnerable victim enhancement accounts for the inability of the victim to resist sexual abuse”). See also United States v. Starr, 533 F.3d 985 (8th Cir. 2008) (affirming the district court’s application of the adjustment where the district court determined that the victim “had psychological and family problems of which [the defendant was or should have been aware,” and there was evidence in the record “on which the district court could infer that [the defendant] used” the victim’s psychological problems to gain the victim’s confidence); United States v. Newsom, 402 F.3d 780 (7th Cir. 2005) (holding that, while every sleeping victim is not “vulnerable” under this guideline, under the facts of the case—the defendant moved the underwear of his sleeping victim to get better video shots of her genitals—the adjustment was proper); United States v. Gawthrop, 310 F.3d 405 (6th Cir. 2002) (affirming the district court’s application of the vulnerable victim adjustment where the defendant “molested and exposed his three-year-old granddaughter to child pornography by abusing his special position as her grandfather”).

<sup>45</sup> See United States v. Jenkins, 712 F.3d 209, 212 (5th Cir. 2013) (application of §3A1.1 appropriate because victimization of children continues beyond the production of the images and the consumer of the material

A §3A1.1(b) adjustment does not apply, however, if the factor that makes the person vulnerable is already incorporated into the offense guideline. See §3A1.1(b), comment. (n.2). Because child pornography guidelines provide for enhancements based on the age of the minor victims and the unusual vulnerability of toddlers and infants, §3A1.1(b) will apply only if the victim was unusually vulnerable for reasons unrelated to his/her age. §3A1.1, comment. (n. 2). See, e.g., United States v. Scott, 529 F.3d 1290 (10th Cir. 2008) (holding that the victim’s petite and fragile stature, naiveté, and poor communication skills made her unusually vulnerable for a 13-year-old girl).

B. §3B1.1 (AGGRAVATING ROLE)

Section 3B1.1 provides for a 4-level adjustment if the defendant was an organizer or leader of a criminal activity that involved five or more participants or was otherwise extensive; a 3-level adjustment if the defendant was a manager or supervisor and the criminal activity involved five or more participants or was otherwise extensive, and a 2-level adjustment if the defendant was an organizer, leader, manager, or supervisor in any criminal activity other than that described above. A “participant” includes a person who is criminally responsible for the commission of the offense, even if not convicted. A victim is considered a participant only if that victim assisted in the promoting of a commercial sex act or prohibited sexual conduct with respect to another victim. See §2G1.1, comment. (n.3).<sup>46</sup>

C. §3B1.3 (ABUSE OF POSITION OF TRUST OR USE OF SPECIAL SKILL)

Section 3B1.3 provides for a 2-level adjustment if the defendant abused a position of public or private trust in a manner that significantly facilitated commission or concealment of the crime. However, this adjustment does not apply in many of the child pornography guidelines if the specific offense characteristic for a victim being in the care, custody, or supervisory control of the defendant also applies. See §2G1.3, comment. (n.2(B)); §2G2.1, comment. (n.3(B)); §2G2.6, comment. (n.2(B)).

may be considered to be “causing the children depicted in those material to suffer . . .”).

IV. CHAPTER FOUR: REPEAT AND DANGEROUS SEX OFFENDER AGAINST MINORS, PROBATION, SUPERVISED RELEASE, AND DEPARTURES

A. §4B1.5 (REPEAT AND DANGEROUS SEX OFFENDER AGAINST MINORS)

Section 4B1.5 applies to offenders whose offense of conviction is one of the “covered sex crime[s]” committed against a minor and who present a continuing danger to the public. §4B1.5, comment. (n.2), (background). The “covered sex crime[s]” relevant to this primer are offenses (including attempt and conspiracy to commit the offense) perpetrated against a minor, under chapter 110 of title 18 (not including trafficking in, receipt of, or possession of, child pornography or a recordkeeping offense), and chapter 117 of title 18 (not including transmitting information about a minor or filing a factual statement about an alien individual, or 18 U.S.C. § 1591).

For purposes of this guideline, the term “minor” means an individual (including fictitious individuals and law enforcement officers) who had not attained the age of 18 years (or who was represented to have not attained the age of 18 years). See §4B1.5, comment. (n.1).

1. Determining the Base Offense Level & Criminal History Category

a. At least one previous sex offense conviction

Section 4B1.5(a) applies where a defendant’s instant offense of conviction is a covered sex crime, §4B1.1 (Career Offender) does not apply, and the defendant committed the instant offense after sustaining at least one sex offense conviction. “Sex offense conviction” means any offense described in 18 U.S.C. § 2426(b)(1)(A) or (B), if the offense was perpetrated against a minor. The term does not include trafficking in, receipt of, or possession of, child pornography. §4B1.5, comment. (n.3(A)(ii)).

As is the case with the parallel recidivist guideline and statutory recidivist provisions, courts “employ a ‘formal categorical approach’ to determine whether a prior conviction qualifies as a defined sex offense conviction. The categorical approach requires that the sentencing court ‘look only to the fact of conviction and the statutory definition of the prior offense.’” United States v. Pierson, 544 F.3d 933 (8th Cir. 2008) (quoting Shepard v. United States, 544 U.S. 13 (2005)).<sup>47</sup> If, however, “the prior offense was committed in a separate jurisdiction in which the offense is defined more broadly than the ‘generic offense’

<sup>47</sup> See also United States v. Simard, 731 F.3d 156 (2d Cir. 2013), cert. denied 134 S. Ct. 1874 (2014) (employing categorical approach to previous conviction under 13 Vt. Stat. Ann § 2602 offense “relating to aggravated sexual abuse, sexual abuse, or abusive sexual conduct involving a minor or ward,” and finding the statute satisfied the predicate offense criteria for the 18 U.S.C. § 2252 (b)(2)).

enumerated in the current prosecution, federal courts employ a ‘modified categorical approach.’” Id.<sup>48</sup>

The Eighth Circuit has held that §4B1.5(a) does not require the formal entry of a judgment of conviction before a defendant is considered convicted for application of the enhancements. United States v. Leach, 491 F.3d 858 (8th Cir. 2007) (holding that §4B1.5(a) “only requires that the defendant have been found guilty of the offense”). The Eighth and Ninth Circuits have held that a juvenile-delinquency adjudication is not a prior sex offense conviction as defined by § 2252(b) and §4B1.5(a). See United States v. Gauld, 865 F.3d 1030 (8th Cir. 2017) (en banc)(Federal Juvenile Delinquency Act has long distinguished between adult criminal convictions and juvenile delinquency adjudications and because § 2252(b)(1) mentions only “convictions,” Congress did not intend juvenile adjudications to trigger that statute’s mandatory minimum); United States v. Nielsen, 694 F.3d 1032 (9th Cir. 2012), cert. denied, 134 S. Ct. 2157, (2014)(juvenile adjudication for sexual assault cannot be basis for §4B1.5(a) enhancement because its use of “sex offense conviction” indicates only adult convictions)

- (i) Base offense level. If subsection (a) applies, the base offense level is first determined under Chapters Two and Three of the applicable guidelines. Next, this offense level is compared to the offense level table provided in §4B1.5(a)(1)(B), decreased by any applicable adjustment from §3E1.1 (Acceptance of Responsibility). The greater resulting offense level should be used.

The “offense statutory maximum” used in §4B1.5(a)(1)(B) includes any increase in the maximum term under a sentencing enhancement provision (such as 18 U.S.C. §§ 2247(a) or 2426(a)) that applies to that covered sex crime because of the defendant’s prior criminal record. §4B1.5, comment. (n. 3(A)). If more than one count of conviction is a covered sex crime, the maximum term for the count with the greatest statutory maximum should be used. See §4B1.5, comment. (n.3(B)).

- (ii) Criminal history category. The criminal history category is first determined under Chapter Four, Part A. Next, this criminal history category is compared to Criminal History Category V, and the greater criminal history category should apply.

<sup>48</sup> See also United States v. Dahl, 833 F.3d 345 (3d Cir. 2016) (vacating and remanding where state offense prohibited touching genitalia through clothing as more broad than “sexual act” which require penetration or actual skin-to-skin contact); United States v. Gardner, 649 F.3d 437 (6th Cir. 2011)(prior conviction for sexual battery was insufficient to trigger 15-year mandatory minimum sentence where sexual battery did not require as an element that complaining witness be a minor).

Double counting. In United States v. Cramer, the defendant pled guilty to transporting a minor with intent to engage in criminal sexual activity and the court applied an upward departure under §4A1.3 and §4B1.5. 414 F.3d 983 (8th Cir. 2005). The circuit court held that applying both did not constitute impermissible double-counting because the upward departure under §4A1.3 was established on an independent basis from the §4B1.5(a) enhancement. Section §4B1.5(a) requires that the defendant have at least one prior sex offense conviction, whereas §4A1.3 takes into account evidence of prior sex offense conduct that did not result in a sex-offense conviction. Further, the §4A1.3 departure applied because the defendant’s possession of sexually explicit photographs of the victim and pornographic magazines were not considered when calculating his criminal history category.

b. Pattern of activity involving prohibited sexual conduct

Section 4B1.5(b) applies when the defendant’s instant offense of conviction is a covered sex crime, §4B1.1 (Career Offender) does not apply, and the defendant has engaged in a pattern of activity involving prohibited sexual conduct. “Prohibited sexual conduct” means any offense described in 18 U.S.C. § 2426(b)(1)(A) or (B), the production of child pornography, or trafficking in child pornography only if, before the commission of the instant offense, the defendant had been convicted for that trafficking in child pornography. It does not include receipt or possession of child pornography. §4B1.5, comment. (n.4(A)).

For purposes of this subsection, a defendant is engaged in a “pattern of activity” if, on at least two separate occasions, the defendant engaged in prohibited sexual conduct with a minor. §4B1.5, comment. (n.4(B)(I)). An “occasion of prohibited sexual conduct” can be considered for purposes of this subsection without regard to whether the conduct occurred during the course of the instant offense or a formal conviction entered §4B1.5, comment. (n.4(B)(ii)).

A previous conviction is not required for an enhancement under §4B1.5(b). A conviction for attempted production of child pornography is considered “prohibited sexual conduct” for purposes of §4B1.5(b).<sup>49</sup> Courts have held that unadjudicated conduct that occurred while the defendant was a juvenile can be a predicate under this subsection.<sup>50</sup>

- (i) Base offense level.* If subsection (b) applies, the base offense level is first determined under Chapters Two and Three. 5 levels are then added to become the new offense level, unless the resulting offense level is less than 22. If the resulting offense level is less than 22, the new offense level shall be 22, decreased by the number of levels

<sup>50</sup> See United States v. Phillips, 431 F.3d 86 (2d Cir. 2005) (upholding the application of §4B1.5(b) where the defendant—who was being sentenced for a conviction for producing child pornography—had engaged in sexual conduct with the victim in the offense of conviction and had engaged in one instance of unadjudicated sexual conduct with another minor victim when the defendant was a juvenile).

corresponding to any applicable adjustment under §3E1.1 (Acceptance of Responsibility).

- (ii) Criminal history category. The criminal history category determined under Chapter Four, Part A is the criminal history category applicable for the offense.

Double counting. Section 4B1.5(b)(1) specifically states that the enhancement is to be added to the offense levels determined under Chapters Two and Three. Thus, the guidelines intend the cumulative application of most enhancements in conjunction with §4B1.5.<sup>51</sup>

Note. If §4B1.1 (Career Offender) applies to the defendant, then §4B1.5 is inapplicable. See §4B1.5(a), (b). The statutory maximum term of supervised release is recommended for offenders sentenced under this guideline, §4B1.5, comment. (n.5(A)), and treatment and monitoring should be considered as special conditions of any term of probation or supervised release. §4B1.5, comment. (n.5(B)). Repeat sex offenders under §4B1.5 are ineligible for a downward departure under §4A1.3. See §4A1.3(b)(2)(B).

B. §5B1.3 (CONDITIONS OF PROBATION)

Section §5B1.3 sets out mandatory, standard, and special conditions of probation.

1. §5B1.3(a) (Mandatory Conditions)

Section 5B1.3(a)(9)(A) provides that, in a state in which the requirements of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act do not apply, a defendant convicted of a sexual offense must report the address where he will reside and any subsequent change of address, and must register as a sex offender in any State where the defendant resides, is employed, carries on a vocation, or is a student. Section 5B1.3(a)(9)(B) provides that, in a state in which the requirements of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act apply, a sex offender must register and keep the registration current in both the jurisdiction where he lives, works, or is a student, and where he was convicted.

<sup>51</sup> See United States v. Rothenberg, 610 F.3d 621 (11th Cir. 2010) (holding application of the 5-level enhancement under §2G2.2(b)(5) and the 5-level enhancement under §4B1.5(b)(1) was appropriate where the defendant had two different online conversations with other adults in which he coached the adults on how to sexually abuse minors); United States v. Fadl, 498 F.3d 862 (8th Cir. 2007) (holding that the district court's application of both §2G2.1(d)(1) and §4B1.5(b) did not constitute impermissible double-counting because "[t]he application of § 2G2.1(d)(1) punished [the defendant] 'for exploiting[ ] different minors, while the § 4B1.5(b) enhancement punished him for exploiting those minors on multiple occasions'" (citation omitted); United States v. Schmeilski, 408 F.3d 917 (7th Cir. 2005) (same); United States v. Peck, 496 F.3d 885 (8th Cir. 2007) (same); see also United States v. Von Loh, 417 F.3d 710 (7th Cir. 2005) (finding no impermissible double-counting where the district court did not group the counts and imposed enhancements under §3D1.4 and §4B1.5).

2. §5B1.3(b)

The guidelines allow courts to impose other conditions of probation if the conditions are “reasonably related to”: (1) the nature and circumstances of the offense and the history and characteristics of the defendant; (2) the need for the sentence imposed to reflect the seriousness of the offense, to promote respect for the law, and to provide just punishment for the offense; (3) the need for the sentence imposed to afford adequate deterrence; (4) the need to protect the public from further crimes by the defendant; and (5) the need to provide the defendant with educational or vocational training, medical care, or other correctional treatment in the most effective manner. Such conditions can only involve such deprivations of liberty or property as are reasonably necessary for the purposes of sentencing indicated in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). See §5B1.3(b)(2).

3. §5B1.3(d) (Policy Statement)

Section 5B1.3(d)(7) sets forth “special” conditions of probation that might be appropriate in sex offense convictions. Subsection (A) allows for a condition requiring the defendant to participate in a program approved by the United States Probation Office for the treatment and monitoring of sex offenders. Subsection (B) allows for a condition limiting the use of a computer or an interactive computer service in cases in which the defendant used such items. Finally, subsection (C) allows for a condition requiring the defendant to submit to a search, at any time, with or without a warrant, by any law enforcement or probation officer, of the defendant’s person and any property, papers, or things upon reasonable suspicion concerning a violation of the probation or unlawful conduct.

C. §5D1.1 (IMPOSITION OF A TERM OF SUPERVISED RELEASE)

Pursuant to this section, the court must order a term of supervised release to follow imprisonment when a sentence of more than one year is imposed, or when required by statute.

D. §5D1.2 (TERM OF SUPERVISED RELEASE)

This section provides that the length of the term of supervised release cannot be less than the minimum term of years specified for the offense, and may be up to life if the offense is a sex offense. See §5D1.2(b)(2). The statutory maximum term of supervised release is recommended if the offense is a sex offense. See §5D1.2(b)(2).<sup>52</sup>

<sup>52</sup> But see United States v. Jenkins, 854 F.3d 1818 (2d Cir. 2017)(vacating 25-year supervised release term for man who will be 63 at time of release as unreasonable absent any justification for “unusually harsh” “post-release supervision that will prevent him from every re-engaging in any community in which he might find

In the Adam Walsh Act of 2006, 18 U.S.C. § 3583 was amended such that the authorized term of supervised release for, among other offenses, sexual exploitation offenses under chapter 110 of title 18, or the transportation of persons under chapter 117 of title 18, increased from “any terms of years or life” to a mandatory minimum of five years with a statutory maximum term of life.

Additionally, § 3583 now requires that with respect to a defendant required to register under the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act who commits a criminal offense under, among others, chapters 110 or 117, or sections 1201 or 1591 of title 18, the court is to 1) revoke a term of supervised release, and 2) require a defendant to serve a term of imprisonment for not less than five years.

E. §5D1.3 (CONDITIONS OF SUPERVISED RELEASE)

Pursuant to section 3583(d)(1), conditions of supervised release must be “reasonably related” to the goals of deterrence, protection of the public, and rehabilitation of the defendant. Further, the conditions must involve no greater deprivation of liberty than is reasonably necessary to meet these goals, pursuant to § 3583(d)(2), and conditions that affect constitutional rights will likely be valid if “narrowly tailored and . . . directly related to deterring [the offender] and protecting the public.”

Section §5D1.3 sets out mandatory, standard, and special conditions of supervised release.

1. §5D1.3(a) (Mandatory Conditions)

Section 5D1.3(a)(7)(A) provides that, in a state in which the requirements of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act do not apply, a defendant convicted of a sexual offense must report the address where he will reside and any subsequent change of address, and must register as a sex offender in any State where the defendant resides, is employed, carries on a vocation, or is a student. This subsection applies if the state continues to register sex offenders pursuant to the sex offender registry in place before the enactment of the Adam Walsh Act. See §5D1.3, comment. (n.1).

himself”); United States v. Inman, 666 F.3d 1001 (6th Cir. 2012) (vacating lifetime supervision where the district court imposed the lifetime term even though the parties had requested a ten year term and the record did not demonstrate that the court had considered any of the pertinent section 3553(a) factors); United States v. Heckman, 592 F.3d 400 (3d Cir. 2010) (finding an unconditional lifetime term of supervised release with a special condition prohibiting all Internet access a greater deprivation of liberty than necessary for a defendant convicted of transportation of child pornography because the defendant had not used the Internet to lure victims to engage in sexual activity, and other, less restrictive means existed to control defendant’s behavior).

Section 5D1.3(a)(7)(B) provides that, in a state in which the requirements of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act apply, a sex offender must register and keep the registration current in both the jurisdiction where he lives, works, or is a student, and where he was convicted.

Section 3583 states that, if a defendant required to register under the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act commits a criminal offense under, among others, chapter 109A of title 18, the court is to: 1) revoke a term of supervised release, and 2) require a defendant to serve a term of imprisonment for not less than five years.

2. §5D1.3(b) (Discretionary Conditions)

The guidelines allow courts to impose other conditions of supervised release if the conditions are “reasonably related to” any or all of the factors listed below. Following the statutory language of 18 U.S.C. § 3583(d)(1), there are four factors tied to the goals of supervised release. The first is the defendant’s history and characteristics and the nature and circumstances of his offense. The second is the need for adequate deterrence of future criminal conduct. The third is the need to protect the public from further crimes by the defendant, and the fourth is effective provision of educational or vocational treatment, medical care, or other needed correctional treatment to the defendant.

Such conditions must also entail “no greater deprivation of liberty than is reasonably necessary” to achieve the goals of supervised release, must be consistent with any pertinent policy statements issued by the Commission, and must have adequate evidentiary support in the record. See §5D1.3(b)(2); United States v. Blinkinsop, 606 F.3d 1110 (9th Cir. 2010) (finding a special condition of supervised release that the defendant not possess camera phones or electronic devices capable of covert photography did not impose significant deprivation of liberty even though his crime did not involve producing child pornography; because of the large number of images he possessed, it was reasonable to anticipate that he might engage in covert photography in the future).<sup>53</sup> Even if the record is devoid of individualized findings by the court of the facts and circumstances in the case, certain characteristics may justify conditions for the majority of offenders. See United States v. Deatherage, 682 F.3d 755 (8th Cir. 2012) (affirming special condition prohibiting defendant from purchasing, possessing or using “any media forms containing pornographic images or sexually oriented materials” because they were “obviously relevant to the child pornography offense” or to the defendant’s history and characteristics). But see United States v. Alvarado, 691 F.3d 592 (5th Cir. 2012) (finding district court erred by automatically imposing lifetime term of supervised release without analysis of circumstances surrounding the crime).

<sup>53</sup> See also United States v. Muhlenbruch, 682 F.3d 1096 (8th Cir. 2012) (finding appropriate special condition requiring defendant to both get prior approval from probation officer before accessing the Internet and to notify probation officer of any location where he may receive mail and get approval before obtaining a new mailing address or post office box, as an “alternate channel for receiving child pornography.”).

Notice. Some courts have found that Rule 32 requires that defendants receive notice of the possibility of imposition of special conditions of supervised release if those conditions are not contemplated by the guidelines.<sup>54</sup>

3. §5D1.3(d)(7) (Policy Statement) (Sex Offenses)

Section 5D1.3(d)(7) lists “special” conditions of supervised release. Subsection (A) allows for a condition requiring the defendant to participate in a program approved by the United States Probation Office for the treatment and monitoring of sex offenders. Subsection (B) allows for a condition limiting the use of a computer or an interactive computer service in cases in which the defendant used such items.<sup>55</sup> Finally, subsection (C) allows for a condition requiring the defendant to submit to a search, at any time, with or without a warrant, by any law enforcement or probation officer, of the defendant’s person and any property, papers, or things upon reasonable suspicion concerning a violation of the supervised release or unlawful conduct.

The court “may delegate to the probation officer details regarding the selection and schedule of a sex offender treatment program even though it must itself impose the actual condition requiring participation in a sex offender treatment program.” United States v. Sines, 303 F.3d 793 (7th Cir. 2002).

Courts have upheld “other” and “special” conditions, but have also struck conditions as overbroad or unreasonable even in light of district court’s significant discretion in imposing supervised release:

a. barring contact with minors, see, e.g., United States v. Maurer, 639 F.3d 72 (3d Cir. 2011) (finding special condition restricting contact with minors not overly broad for a conviction for possessing child pornography when defendant’s conduct included initiating sexual conversation with a purported minor on the Internet); United States v. Levering, 441 F.3d 566 (8th Cir. 2006) (holding that the district court did not abuse its discretion by imposing a condition of supervised release requiring a total prohibition on contact with juvenile females—without prior approval of his probation officer—where the defendant had pleaded guilty to the forcible rape of a female juvenile); United States v. Roy, 438 F.3d 140 (1st Cir. 2006) (holding that the sentencing court did not abuse its discretion in imposing a special

Cope*, 527 F.3d 944 (9th Cir. 2008) (“Where a condition of supervised release is not on the list of mandatory or discretionary conditions in the sentencing guidelines, notice is required before it is imposed, so that counsel and the defendant will have the opportunity to address personally its appropriateness.”). See also United States v. Sherwood, 850 F.3d 391 (8th Cir. 2017) (“Advance notice of supervised release conditions fits into the category of recommended best practice rather than mandatory requirement.”).

condition that the defendant, convicted of possession of child pornography, have no contact with his girlfriend or her minor children without the parole officer's approval because the condition served the permitted goal of protecting the minors from harm and also prevented recidivism). But see United States v. Jenkins, 854 F.3d 1818 (2d Cir. 2017)(vacating condition barring direct or indirect contact with minors, noting that such a condition would bar the defendant from any interaction with family or community absent preapproval by the Probation Office); United States v. Wolf Child, 699 F.3d 1082 (9th Cir. 2012) (holding that a condition barring the defendant from residing with or being in the company of his own minor daughters or from dating anyone with minor children was unreasonable and impermissibly overbroad).

b. requiring sex offender treatment and physiological testing, see, e.g., United States v. Mercado, 777 F.3d 532 (1st Cir. 2015) (finding that requiring a defendant to participate in a sex offender treatment program and obtain pre-approval to visit his children was reasonable); United States v. Morgan, 44 F. App'x 881 (10th Cir. 2002) (unpub) (holding that a special condition of supervised release requiring the defendant "to participate in a sex offender treatment and 'submit to a risk assessment including physiological testing,' violates neither [the defendant's] constitutional rights nor the statutory and Guideline requirements for the imposition of special conditions of supervised release"). But see United States v. Wagner, 872 F.3d 535, 542-543 (7th Cir. 2017)(holding that condition that allowed treatment provider to decide if defendant could view adult pornography was impermissible delegation); United States v. Stoterau, 524 F.3d 988 (9th Cir. 2008) (setting forth a "heightened procedural requirement" in which the district court must follow "additional procedures and make special findings" for conditions of supervised release that implicate "a particularly significant liberty interest," such as mandating antipsychotic medication or certain invasive types of physiological testing, as these procedures and medicines impinge the "constitutional interest inherent in avoiding unwanted bodily intrusions or manipulations." ).<sup>56</sup> See also United States v. Iverson, 874 F.3d

<sup>56</sup> The use of one physiological testing instrument, the Penile Plethysmograph (PPG), has been contentious. While its use has been sporadically approved, see, e.g., United States v. Dotson, 324 F.3d 256 (4th Cir. 2003) (upholding PPG testing condition as useful for the treatment of sex offenders and within the discretion of the district court), courts in recent years have expressed significant misgivings regarding its use. See United States v. Rock, 863 F.3d 827 (D.C. Cir. 2017)( striking PPG testing condition because it "implicates significant liberty interests and would require, at a minimum, a more substantial justification than other typical conditions of supervised release."); United States v. Medina, 779 F.3d 55 (1st Cir. 2015) (finding the PPG testing condition without substantial justification and thus "facially unreasonable"; deeming PPG testing an "extraordinarily invasive supervised release condition"); United States v. McLaurin, 731 F.3d 258 (2d Cir. 2013) (finding the PPG testing condition to be an "extraordinarily invasive" condition such that "there is a line at which the government must stop. Penile plethysmography testing crosses it."; to impose such a "demeaning" condition, the district court must at a minimum, make findings, sufficiently informative and

855 (5th Cir. 2017)(vacating condition that defendant “follow all other lifestyle or restrictions or treatment requirements imposed by the therapist” because allowing therapist to set restrictions on conduct usurped judge’s sentencing authority).<sup>57</sup>

- (i) mandating medication in limited contexts, see, e.g., United States v. Mike, 632 F.3d 686 (10th Cir. 2011), cert. denied, 135 S. Ct. 2891 (June 29, 2015) (rejecting defendant’s overbreadth challenge to the condition that he take all prescribed medications, finding instead that “in the context in which they were placed” the requirement is limited to “those medications that are related to his mental health programs.”). But see United States v. Siegel, 753 F.3d 705 (7th Cir. 2014) (finding condition that defendant take “any and all prescribed medication,” was impermissibly vague and posing numerous unanswered questions such as: “why is a probation officer, rather than a physician or nurse or pharmacist, entrusted with directing which medications the defendant must take?”). See also United States v. Cope, 527 F.3d 944 (9th Cir. 2008) (explaining that a medication requirement condition is supportable when construed narrowly and when it does not include any medication which implicates a “particularly significant liberty interest” such as antipsychotics; if the condition does involve medications such as antipsychotics, the district court must satisfy “heightened” requirements and make “on-the-record, medically-grounded findings” that court-ordered medication is necessary to accomplish a section 3583(d)(1) factor and involves no greater deprivation of liberty than reasonably necessary).
- (ii) requiring Abel testing (a diagnostic exam for sex offenders that measures “visual reaction time” to non-erotic images of adults and children in order to determine his sexual interest), see, e.g., United States v. Teeple, 447 F. App’x 712 (6th Cir. 2012) (unpub) (upholding Abel testing condition as reasonably related to the defendant’s status as a sex offender, the need for deterrence and public protection, and the defendant’s correctional treatment). But see United States v. T.M., defendant-specific for appellate review, that the test is “therapeutically beneficial,” that its benefits substantially outweigh any costs to the subject’s dignity, that no less intrusive means exists, and that it is narrowly tailored to serve a “compelling government interest”); United States v. Weber, 451 F.3d 552 (9th Cir. 2006) (vacating the PPG testing condition because the district court failed to make “on-the-record medically-grounded findings” demonstrating that the significant liberty interest and the degree of intrusion is reasonably necessary and maintaining that the burden is on the government, not the defendant, to establish at the time of sentencing that the condition is reasonably necessary).

<sup>57</sup> Similarly problematic are conditions that seek to regulate adult relationships through supervision. See, e.g., United States v. Rock, 863 F.3d 827 (D.C. Cir. 2017)(striking condition that defendant notify the probation office of “any significant romantic relationship” as unconstitutionally vague)(citing United States v. Reeves, 591 F.3d 77, 81 (2d Cir. 2010)).

330 F.3d 1235 (9th Cir. 2003) (vacating sex offender conditions, including Abel testing, as not reasonably related to deterrence, public safety, or rehabilitation, where the defendant had a twenty-year-old kidnapping conviction involving undressing and nude picture-taking of an eight-year-old girl and a forty-year-old dismissed charge of a sexual relationship with a minor).

c. requiring the defendant to submit to random polygraph testing, see, e.g., United States v. Brand, 597 F. App'x 624 (11th Cir. 2015) (unpub) (polygraph testing reasonable in light of the defendant's lack of respect for the law, the offense, and his personal history); United States v. Lee, 315 F.3d 206 (3d Cir. 2003) (finding that a condition requiring a defendant who pleaded guilty to child pornography offenses to submit to random polygraph testing was not an abuse of discretion); United States v. Stoterau, 524 F.3d 988 (9th Cir. 2008) (upholding a polygraph testing condition but explaining that defendant retains his Fifth Amendment rights during any such testing that he may invoke and remain silent; "should the government desire defendant to answer, it may afford his answers the protection of use and derivative use immunity.").

d. prohibiting the defendant from possessing or viewing pornographic material, see, e.g., United States v. Miller, 665 F.3d 114 (5th Cir. 2011) (holding that a condition restricting viewing any sexually stimulating or sexually oriented material was not overbroad where one video in his possession depicted a minor engaged in sexual activity with a male adult while a female adult held the child in place, because the presence of adults in the video permitted the conclusion that the defendant's interest in sexually stimulating materials involving adults was "intertwined with his sexual interest in minors"); United States v. Simmons, 343 F.3d 72 (2d Cir. 2003) (holding that a condition prohibiting the defendant from possessing or viewing pornographic material was reasonably related to a legitimate sentencing purpose because the defendant often videotaped his sexual attacks on his victims). But see United States v. Wagner, 872 F.3d 535, 542-543 (7th Cir. 2017) (condition that left decision of whether defendant could view adult pornography to treatment provider selected by the probation department was "impermissible delegation" and would require specific evidence before the district court to support its imposition); United States v. Cabot, 325 F.3d 384 (2d Cir. 2003) (finding a condition that prohibited the defendant from possessing matter that "depicted or alluded to sexual activity," or that "depicted minors under the age of 18" overbroad); United States v. Cope, 527 F.3d 944 (9th Cir. 2008) (holding that a condition prohibiting the defendant from possessing "any materials . . . depicting and/or describing child pornography" is overbroad).

e. restricting defendants' frequenting and loitering in places where children are likely to be, see, e.g., United States v. Ristine, 335 F.3d 692 (8th Cir. 2003) (finding that a condition prohibiting the defendant, who pled guilty to receipt of child pornography, from places where minor children congregate such as "residences, parks, beaches, pools, daycare centers, playgrounds, and schools" without prior written consent of the probation officer was not overbroad where the purpose of the condition was to limit the defendant's access to children); United States v. Reardon, 349 F.3d 608 (9th Cir. 2003) (same); United States v. MacMillen, 544 F.3d 71 (2d Cir. 2008) (same).

f. authorizing probation to discuss third-party risks with employers, see, e.g., United States v. MacMillen, 544 F.3d 71 (2d Cir. 2008) (holding that this condition is not overbroad because "the purpose of the employer notification condition is to aid the prevention of improper computer use," and would not apply to all types of employment). But see United States v. Mike, 632 F.3d 686 (10th Cir. 2011), cert. denied, 135 S. Ct. 2891 (June 29, 2015) (finding infirm the conditions requiring the defendant to notify potential employers or educational programs about his criminal convictions because such notification constitutes an "occupational restriction," and the court did not make the required specific findings as set forth in United States v. Souser, 405 F.3d 1162 (10th Cir. 2003) under §5F1.5.

g. limiting computer or Internet access, see, e.g., United States v. Rock, 863 F.3d 827 (D.C. Cir. 2017)(upholding prohibition on use of any digital device to access pornography of any kind where defendant had distributed child pornography by use of a computer); (United States v. Buchanan, 485 F.3d 274 (5th Cir. 2007) (affirming a special condition restricting Internet use for a defendant convicted of possession of child pornography as reasonably related to the offense of possession and the need to prevent recidivism and protect the public); United States v. Alvarez, 478 F.3d 864 (8th Cir. 2007) ( sufficient nexus between the defendant's use of the Internet and his exploitation of the victim to warrant a special condition prohibiting him from having Internet access at any location without the prior approval of his probation officer); But see United States v. Wagner, 872 F.3d 535, 542-543 (7th Cir. 2017)(poor wording of condition seemingly giving sex offender treatment provider discretion over aspects of internet use "vague" and leading to "absurd result"); United States v. Duke, 788 F.3d 392 (5th Cir. 2015) (vacating a special condition of supervised release that prohibited defendant from accessing computers or the Internet for the rest of his life because the scope coupled with the duration of the condition contravened § 2583(d)'s requirement that release conditions be "narrowly tailored" to avoid imposing a greater deprivation than was reasonably necessary and because the ban would completely preclude the defendant from “participating in modern society” in light of the “ubiquity and importance of the Internet” in using the Internet for innocent purposes such as paying bills online or taking online classes); United States v. Sofsky, 287 F.3d 122 (2d Cir. 2002) (remanding where the court imposed a special condition on a defendant, convicted of receipt of child pornography, that he not “access a computer, the Internet, or bulletin board systems at any time, unless approved by the probation officer” because “in light of the nature of his offense,” the condition “inflicts a greater deprivation on [his] liberty than is reasonably necessary”); United States v. White, 244 F.3d 1199 (10th Cir. 2001) (overturning a special condition imposed on a defendant, convicted of using the Internet to receive child pornography, that required that he not possess a computer with Internet access as both too narrow and too broad; it was not reasonably related to prohibiting access to the Internet because it did not prohibit accessing the Internet from public places, but was greater than necessary in the balancing of protections of the public with the goals of sentencing because it prevented the defendant from using the Internet for legitimate reasons).

F. §5E1.1 (RESTITUTION)

Section 5E1.1 requires courts to order a term of restitution for identifiable victims. Restitution is mandatory under §5E1.1 and 18 U.S.C. § 2559 for offenses that involve the sexual exploitation of children and child pornography. Paroline v. United States, 134 S. Ct. 1710, 1728 (2014). Restitution is proper under section 2259 only to the extent that the defendant’s offense proximately caused the victim’s losses. Id. at 1720, 1722. Even mere possessors of child pornography cause proximate harm to the victims. Id. Because child pornography victims suffer “continuing and grievous harm as a result of [knowing] that a large, indeterminate number of individuals have viewed and will in the future view images of the sexual abuse she endured[,]” all persons who reproduce, distribute, or possess child pornography play a part in this tragedy and are liable for restitution. Id.

In Paroline, the Supreme Court considered the difficult task of determining the appropriate amount of restitution—i.e. how much of the victim’s losses are attributable to the defendant’s conduct. The defendant was convicted of possessing child pornography and admitted to possessing a total of 150-300 images, two of which were images of the victim at issue. The victim sought $3.4 million in damages, and the Fifth Circuit sitting en banc held that each defendant who possessed the victim’s images should be made liable for the victim’s entire loss of $3.4 million from the trade in her images. In vacating and remanding, the Court held that there is a general proximate cause requirement for all losses under section 2259, and that the court “should order restitution in an amount that comports with the defendant’s relative role in the causal process that underlies the victim’s general losses.” The Court provided further guidance to district courts by enumerating factors to consider in determining the amount of restitution:

1. the victim’s total losses caused by traffic in her images,
2. the number of past criminal defendants who contributed to those losses,
3. reasonable predictions of the number of future offenders likely to be caught and convicted for contributing,
4. an estimate of the broader number of offenders involved,
5. whether the defendant reproduced or distributed the images,
6. whether the defendant had any connection to the initial production of the images, and
7. how many images of the victim the defendant possessed.

In the case of a “possessor like Paroline” who played a relatively small part in the victim’s overall losses, the Court held that the amount would “not be severe” but would also not be “a token or nominal amount.” However, the Court declined to “prescribe a precise algorithm” and urged the courts to use “discretion and sound judgment.”

Selected Post-Paroline cases. United States v. Osman, 853 F.3d 1184 (11th Cir. 2017)(affirming award of $16,250 for future psychiatric care where defendant had committed contact sexual abuse against victim); United States v. Darabise, 164 F. Supp.3d 400 (E.D.N.Y. 2016) (applying the Paroline analysis to limit the restitution to victims sought); United States v. Beckman, 786 F.3d 672 (8th Cir. 2015), cert. denied, 136 S. Ct. 270 (Oct. 5, 2015) (applying the Paroline analysis in upholding a $3,000 per victim restitution order); United States v. Rogers, 758 F.3d 37 (1st Cir. 2014) (upholding a restitution order of $3,150 to victim who appeared in nine video clips that defendant possessed);

G. §5F1.5 (OCCUPATIONAL RESTRICTIONS)

Section §5F1.5(a) authorizes a court to impose occupational restrictions in limited circumstances. These occupational restrictions can do two things. First, they can prevent a defendant from taking a certain type of employment. For example, a sex offender may not be allowed to work around children.<sup>58</sup> Second, a lesser restriction can limit the “terms” of a defendant's employment. For example, a defendant convicted of fraud may be restricted from working in a position handling money at a bank or may be required to discuss with the employer bank the details of his criminal history.

<sup>58</sup> See United States v. Daniels, 541 F.3d 915 (9th Cir. 2008) (approving a condition that required the defendant to obtain prior approval from the probation office before being employed by a business or organization “that causes him to regularly contact persons under the age of 18”).

Such restrictions can only be imposed, however, if the court determines (1) that there is a reasonably direct relationship between the defendant's occupation and the offense conduct; and (2) that imposition of the restriction is reasonably necessary to protect the public. Pursuant to §5F1.5(b), an occupational restriction may only be in place for "the minimum time and to the minimum extent necessary to protect the public." See United States v. Reardon, 349 F.3d 608 (9th Cir. 2003) (denying defendant's argument that the special conditions on his use of his computer and the Internet were occupational restrictions because the restrictions did not prohibit him from working in his profession as an art director or set decorator). Occupational restrictions must be supported by specific findings as to the relationship of the offense and the public protection necessity.<sup>59</sup> See United States v. Dunn, 777 F.3d 1171 (10th Cir. 2015) (that stated, "given the required scrutiny which we give to occupational restrictions, we conclude we must vacate the occupational restriction relating to computer use and monitoring and remand for further consideration, including making the findings required before imposition of any occupational restriction.")

H. §5K2.0 (GROUNDS FOR DEPARTURE (POLICY STATEMENT))

Pursuant to §5K2.0(b), the only grounds for a departure for "sexual offenses" below the range established by the applicable guidelines are those enumerated in Part K. See §5K2.0, comment. (n.4(B)). The definition of "sexual offenses" includes, among others, offenses under 18 U.S.C. § 1591, and chapters 71, 110, and 117 of title 18. See §5K2.0, comment. (n.4(A)).

I. §5K2.22 (Specific Offender Characteristics as Grounds for Downward Departure in Child Crimes and Sexual Offenses (Policy Statement))

For offenses committed under 18 U.S.C. 1591, or chapters 71, 110, or 117 (among others), of title 18, (1) age is only a reason to depart downward if and to the extent permitted by §5H1.1, (2) an extraordinary physical impairment is only a reason to depart downward if and to the extent permitted by §5H1.4, and (3) drug, alcohol, or gambling dependence or abuse is not a reason to depart downward.

<sup>59</sup> See United States v. Dunn, 777 F.3d 1171 (10th Cir. 2015) (that stated, "given the required scrutiny which we give to occupational restrictions, we conclude we must vacate the occupational restriction relating to computer use and monitoring and remand for further consideration, including making the findings required before imposition of any occupational restriction.")' United States v. Du, 476 F.3d 1168 (10th Cir. 2007) (specific findings are required before a court imposes any employment conditions that are considered "occupational restrictions").

V. CHAPTER FIVE: POST-BOOKER VARIANCE UNDER 3553(a)

A. FIRST CIRCUIT

United States v. Crespo-Rios, 787 F.3d 34 (1st Cir. 2015), aff'd on remand, 2015 WL 6394256 (Oct. 19, 2015). The district court erred in sentencing defendant because there was an inadequate justification for the extreme variance imposed. It focused exclusively on defendant's potential for rehabilitation and did not explain how it weighed the other factors in 18 U.S.C.S. § 3553(a) or why the particular sentence was appropriate in light of those factors.

United States v. Medina, 779 F.3d 55 (1st Cir. 2015). District court committed plain error in imposing a twenty-year term of supervised release for defendant's violation of SORNA, 18 U.S.C.S. § 2250, because the term "sex offense" in U.S. Sentencing Guidelines Manual § 5D1.2(b) did not encompass a SORNA violation for failing to register as a sex offender.

B. SECOND CIRCUIT

United States v. Jenkins, 854 F.3d 181 (2nd Cir. 2017). The Second Circuit vacated and remanded the defendant's 225-month sentence for possession and transportation of child pornography. Notwithstanding the fact that the sentence imposed was within the properly calculated guideline range, the court held that the term of imprisonment was "shockingly high" and the conditions of the 25-year term of supervised release were "excessively severe." The court cited prior circuit decisions emphasizing that district courts must take particular care to reconcile sentences under §2G2.2 with the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) because the guideline has been developed "at the direction of Congress" rather than by the expertise of the Sentencing Commission. The court noted that the sentencing range produced by §2G2.2 approached the statutory maximum and failed to distinguish between the most dangerous defendants and others. The Second Circuit determined that the district court's failure to consider these concerns resulted in a substantively unreasonable sentence.

United States v. Brown, 843 F.3d 74 (2d Cir. 2016) Sentence of 720 months for three counts of production of child pornography, 240 months for each count to be served consecutively, and two counts of possession of child pornography, to be served concurrently, reasonable because of the seriousness of the crimes. The sentence imposed was below the guideline range of 110 years, down from life imprisonment because of statutory maximums. The defendant had sexual contact repeatedly with multiple young victims and the fact that the victims were asleep when some of the visual depictions and videos were taken does not make this conduct any less serious.

United States v. Cossey, 632 F.3d 82 (2d Cir. 2011). The district court plainly erred by imposing a sentence based on its conclusion that the defendant would reoffend based on genetic composition. While recidivism is one of many factors that the sentencing court may consider, the court cannot rely solely on this factor in imposing a sentence, especially where the court’s belief of likely recidivism is based on an unsupported assumption of defendant’s genetic predisposition to do so.

United States v. Dorvee, 616 F.3d 174 (2d Cir. 2010). The Second circuit vacated the within-guideline sentence of 20 years, finding it procedurally and substantively unreasonable. The court found that §2G2.2 is “fundamentally different” from most other guidelines and that “unless applied with great care, can lead to unreasonable sentences that are inconsistent with what § 3553 requires.” Although the guidelines are typically developed by the Commission using an empirical approach based on data about past practices, the court stated that the Commission did not use that empirical approach for this guideline when it amended the guideline at the direction of Congress. The court stated that in keeping with Kimbrough, “a district court may vary from the [g]uidelines range based solely on a policy disagreement with the [g]uidelines, even where that disagreement applies to a wide class of offenders or offenses.” Further, it encouraged district courts to take their broad discretion seriously when reaching sentencing decisions under §2G2.2 because it is “an eccentric Guideline of highly unusual provenance which, unless carefully applied, can easily generate unreasonable results.”

C. THIRD CIRCUIT

United States v. Grober, 624 F.3d 592 (3d Cir. 2010). The Third Circuit found a below-guideline sentence of the statutory minimum for receipt of child pornography to be procedurally reasonable because Kimbrough permits a court to vary even when a guideline is a direct reflection of a congressional directive. Although the guidelines deserve careful consideration and cannot be ignored when produced at the direction of Congress, the court found it was not an abuse of discretion for the district court to vary because it set out sufficiently compelling explanations to justify its below-guideline sentence. The sentencing court relied on Troy Stabenow’s Deconstructing the Myth of Careful Study: A Primer on the Flawed Progression of the Child Pornography Guidelines and other district court opinions expressing concern for the child pornography guidelines based on Congress’ role in their development. The Third Circuit stated that the Commission’s subsequent History of the Child Pornography Guidelines report from 2009 further supported the district court’s decision because it demonstrated the role Congress has played in the development of the child pornography guidelines.

United States v. Brown, 578 F.3d 221 (3d Cir. 2009). The Third Circuit vacated and remanded the defendant’s above-guideline sentence because the district court failed to distinguish whether it was the product of a departure or a variance.

United States v. Lychock, 578 F.3d 214 (3d Cir. 2009). The defendant’s guideline range for possessing child pornography was 30-37 months. The court sentenced him to probation, stating that imprisonment would be “counterproductive,” and that the variance was justified by the defendant’s cooperation, age, acceptance of responsibility, supportive family and desire to seek psychological treatment. The Third Circuit found the district court’s analysis so “procedurally flawed” as to result in a substantively unreasonable sentence. It explained that the district court erred by failing to address the government’s argument regarding avoiding sentencing disparity among co-defendants. It also stated that the district court relied too heavily on characteristics such as defendant’s age and lack of criminal history, which were common to the majority of child pornography offenders, and not enough on the statutory factors. Lastly, the court held that the district court failed to sufficiently explain its view that imprisonment would not provide deterrence or protection of the public. It stated: “To the extent that these assertions reflect a policy disagreement with the Guidelines recommendations [], such a disagreement is permissible only if a District Court provides “sufficiently compelling” reasons to justify it.

United States v. Goff, 501 F.3d 250 (3d Cir. 2007). The Third Circuit reversed a four-month sentence for possession of hundreds of images of child pornography imposed because the defendant had never acted in a sexual way with children and had no criminal history. The court held that the defendant’s sentence was too lenient and was procedurally and substantively unreasonable, and found that the district court had failed to reflect the required analysis of the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors.

D. FOURTH CIRCUIT

United States v. Zuk, 874 F.3d 398 (4th Cir. 2017). The Fourth Circuit remanded the defendant’s 26-month time-served sentence for possessing child pornography, holding that the sentence was substantively unreasonable under the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) sentencing factors. Given the “egregious” nature of the defendant’s conduct, a 90 percent variance based “almost exclusively” on the defendant’s post-arrest diagnosis of mild autism was substantively unreasonable. The court stated that the sentence was “simply below the bare minimum necessary” to reflect the seriousness of the offense, promote respect for the law and provide just punishment.

United States v. Dowell, 771 F.3d 162 (4th Cir. 2014). The Fourth Circuit held that a sentence of 960 months for production and transportation of child pornography was substantively reasonable. Defendant received this sentence due in part to a 5-level specific offense character increase under §2G2.2(b)(5) for being “engaged in a pattern of activity involving the sexual abuse or exploitation of a minor” and a 5-level increase above the base offense level under §4B1.5(b)(1) because “the defendant engaged in a pattern of activity involving prohibited sexual conduct.” Defendant argued that receiving both enhancements constituted double counting, but the Fourth Circuit held that there is a well-established principle that double counting is appropriate unless the Sentencing Guidelines expressly prohibits it. The Fourth Circuit found it improper to apply the “vulnerable victim” enhancement under §3A1.1(b)(1) simply because of the low age of the victims when the defendant had already received the specific offense characteristic for a minor victim under §2G2.1(b)(1)(A) for victims being under the age of twelve. However, the Fourth Circuit found the error to be harmless because the defendant’s offense level would be above the maximum offense level of 43, with or without the “vulnerable victim” enhancement.

E. FIFTH CIRCUIT

United States v. Robinson, 741 F.3d 588 (5th Cir. 2014). A sentencing court commits procedural error if it fails to appreciate its discretion to consider evidence of cooperation under 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). The error was not harmless to the defendant and the sentencing court had the power to consider defendant’s cooperation under statutory sentencing factors in the absence of substantial assistance motion.

United States v. Fraga, 704 F.3d 432 (5th Cir. 2013). The defendant’s sentence was not substantively unreasonable where he received 27 months, which was a 9-month upward departure from the sentencing guideline range. It was not unreasonable for a judge to weigh his history of repeated assaults, several sexual in nature, against women and girls more heavily in her considerations than the fact that the defendant cooperated with the government in another case. His testimony turned out to be unnecessary in that case. The judge’s upward departure was based on 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) and the nature and circumstances of the offense and the defendant’s history and characteristics and a need to deter the defendant’s future criminal conduct and protect the public.

F. SIXTH CIRCUIT

United States v. Robinson, 778 F.3d 515 (6th Cir.), cert. denied, 135 S. Ct. 2904 (June 29, 2015). The defendant’s sentence of one-day imprisonment, followed by five years of supervised release, following a guilty plea for knowing possession of over 7,100 images, was substantively unreasonable. The district court failed to consider any of the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors and the mitigating evidence presented was insufficient to justify the remarkable variance from the guideline recommendations.

United States v. Richards, 659 F.3d 527 (6th Cir. 2011). The Sixth Circuit found that a defendant’s below-guideline sentence of 16 years’ imprisonment for production, distribution, advertising, and possession of child pornography for operating a website featuring pornography involving underage adolescent males was reasonable. The government argued on appeal that the sentence was only one year greater than the mandatory minimum sentence on the production of child pornography alone, but although the court found “troubling aspects” in the district court’s rationale, including its mitigation of the seriousness of the defendant’s actions “by noting that his relationship with minors was to a certain extent consensual,” it found the district court had thoroughly addressed the parties’ arguments and understood its sentencing options. The district court had stated “[i]f 16 years of sex offender, mental health, and addiction treatment cannot change [the defendant’s ‘taste for sex with adolescents’] certainly 30 or 40 years has no better chance of doing so” and had found the eight years of supervised release after imprisonment to be an “extensive period” that put “substantial limitations on his freedom and provide more opportunity for treatment and close supervision.” The Sixth Circuit found that “[w]hile we cannot say that this is the sentence we would have given,” the variance did not exceed the discretion Gall gives district courts.

G. SEVENTH CIRCUIT

United States v. Martin, 718 F.3d 684 (7th Cir. 2013). The defendant appealed his sentence for possession of child pornography. The defendant argued that the sentence was unreasonable because he had multiple significant mental health and substance abuse issues. The case was remanded because the lower court failed to address the defendant’s argument that he was a low risk for recidivism now that he was receiving treatment. The case was also remanded because the lower court failed to consider the defendant’s argument that the sentencing guidelines produce disproportionately long sentences for child-pornography possessors. However, the appellate court rejected the defendant’s argument that a below the guidelines sentence was necessary to avoid unwarranted sentencing disparities.

United States v. Bradley, 628 F.3d 394 (7th Cir. 2010). The Seventh Circuit vacated and remanded the defendant’s above-guideline sentence for traveling to engage in sexual conduct with a minor because it found the district court based the sentence on speculation. The sentencing court imposed a sentence of 240 months, 169 months above the advisory guideline range, based on its assumptions that the defendant had engaged in similar behaviors in the past and his potential for recidivism. Although the evidence did establish that the defendant possessed child pornography, the circuit court stated possession was a separate offense that the court properly considered, but found “it is unclear how the [district] court connected the possession of child pornography with the conclusion that [the defendant] had committed this crime before and would commit it again.”

United States v. Huffstatler, 571 F.3d 620 (7th Cir. 2009) (per curiam). The defendant’s guideline range for production of child pornography was 300 to 365 months, and the court imposed an above-guideline sentence of 450 months. The defendant argued that his sentence was unreasonable, stating that the court was obligated to sentence him below the guideline range because the child pornography guidelines “were crafted without the benefit of the Sentencing Commission’s usual empirical study and are invalid.” The Seventh Circuit rejected the defendant’s argument that “methodological flaws” that “run through the child-pornography guidelines invalidate them entirely.” The court held that the child pornography guidelines are valid and that “while district courts perhaps have the freedom to sentence below the child-pornography guidelines based on disagreement with the guidelines, as with the crack guidelines, they are certainly not required to do so.”

H. EIGHTH CIRCUIT

United States v. Woodall, 782 F.3d 383 (8th Cir. 2015). The defendant appealed the district court’s special condition of his supervised release prohibiting his consumption of alcohol and entering establishments that derive their primary source of income from alcohol sales. The eighth circuit court vacated the special condition holding that since the defendant has no history of alcohol influencing him to be a danger to society, the alcohol prohibition would be a greater deprivation of liberty than necessary to achieve the goals of rehabilitation and protection considered by 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a).

United States v. Franik, 687 F.3d 988 (8th Cir. 2012). The defendant pled guilty to forcibly taking a 13-year-old girl across state lines, tying her to a tree in the woods, molesting her, and then leaving her in the woods. He received 360 months’ incarceration which was 33 months above the guideline range. The Eighth Circuit held the district court’s determination that the guidelines did not take into account the defendant’s criminal history, which indicated his high risk to reoffend, and that the extraordinary trauma to the victim and her family also justified a higher sentence. The defendant had six prior convictions, only one of which contributed to his sentence under the guidelines. The district court was not unreasonable to not take more into consideration the facts that the defendant was under the influence of methamphetamines at the time of his crime, that he never consummated the full extent of the sexual acts with the victim because he decided it was wrong and that he did not use a weapon.

United States v. Hammond, 698 F.3d 679 (8th Cir. 2012). The Eighth Circuit found that the district court did not err in denying a downward variance for a defendant convicted of enticement of a minor to engage in prohibited sexual activity, even though the defendant believed the victim to be 13, rather than 11, years old. The court applied an 8-level enhancement because the offense involved a child under the age of 12 because the victim was, in fact, 11 years old. The court held that ignorance of the victim’s age is not a characteristic that merits a downward variance under section 3553(a)..

United States v. Gnavi, 474 F.3d 532 (8th Cir. 2007). The Eighth Circuit upheld as reasonable a 120-month sentence for attempting to receive child pornography, which was a 54 percent upward variance from the top of the guideline range. The court noted that the sentencing court had based its sentence on concern for public safety where the defendant had been “acting out in the community towards children.” See also United States v. Meyer, 452 F.3d 998 (8th Cir. 2006) (affirming a 270-month sentence where the guideline range was 121-151 months in prison).

I. NINTH CIRCUIT

United States v. Shouse, 755 F.3d 1104 (9th Cir. 2014). The Ninth Circuit affirmed the district court’s imposition of a 50-year sentence for a defendant convicted of one count of child pornography and a separate count of doing so while a registered sex offender. The sentence was adequately supported by the judge’s discussion of the “horrific,” “dangerous,” and “predatory” nature of the offense and the record was clear that the judge had considered all of the § 3553(a) factors before selecting the sentences imposed and directing that they run consecutively rather than concurrently.

J. TENTH CIRCUIT

United States v. Wireman, 849 F.3d 956 (10th Cir. 2017). The Tenth Circuit affirmed the defendant’s six concurrent 240-month sentences for distribution and possession of child pornography. The court rejected the defendant’s claim that the district court did not adequately address his policy critiques of §2G2.2, stating that the district court was not required to defend §2G2.2 or otherwise do or say anything more. The circuit court nonetheless encouraged district courts to go beyond the bare minimum and directly address a defendant’s arguments for leniency even if not required to do so.

United States v. Grigsby, 749 F.3d 908 (10th Cir. 2014), cert. denied, 136 S. Ct. 2031 (2016). The Tenth Circuit found that a sentence of 260 years for the production of child pornography was reasonable. The district court found the total offense level was level 43, but that the statutory maximum sentence was 260 years. Because 260 years is less than life, the court sentenced him to 260 years. Relying on the Commission’s 2012 Report to Congress: Federal Child Pornography Offenses (Dec. 2012) and United States v. Dorvee, 616 F.3d 174 (2d Cir. 2010), the defendant argued that §2G2.1 is a flawed guideline and the court should have instead sentenced him only on consideration of the factors in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). The circuit court found that although the Report “urg[ed] the Commission and Congress to revise the non-production sentencing scheme,” the Report had also observed that “[s]entencing in federal production cases has been less controversial than in non-production cases.” The court held that the district court correctly included the guidelines in its consideration, even if the Commission did not use an empirical approach, and rejected the idea that a guideline provision is unreasonable because it might not be based on empirical data.

United States v. Huckins, 529 F.3d 1312 (10th Cir. 2008). The Tenth Circuit affirmed a sentence of 18 months in prison after the defendant pleaded guilty to one count of possession of child pornography. The guideline range for the offense was 78-97 months in prison. The court held that the district court properly considered the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors, and considered the defendant “as an individual.”

K. ELEVENTH CIRCUIT

United States v. Cubero, 754 F.3d 888 (11th Cir.), cert. denied, 135 S. Ct. (Dec. 6, 2014). The defendant appealed his 151-month sentence for pleading guilty to distribution and possession of child pornography. The district court rejected the defendant’s argument that distribution is an essential element of 18 U.S.C. Section, 2252(a)(2) and was therefore taken into account when calculating his base offense level. Distribution is not an essential element of 2252(a)(2) because a violation can also be based on receipt or reproduction of child pornography. The district court also rejected the defendant’s argument that his 2-level increase for distribution under 2G2.2(b)(3)(F) was impermissibly duplicative of his base offense level calculated under 2G2.2(a)(2), which covers multiple possible violations of 2252(a)(2). There was no double counting since the sentencing commission properly differentiated between the “potential harm caused by receipt and distribution.”

United States v. Flanders, 752 F.3d 1317 (11th Cir. 2014), cert. denied, 135 S. Ct. 1188 (2015). The defendant’s life sentences for sex trafficking and related offenses were not substantively unreasonable.

United States v. Curtis, 513 F. App’x 823 (11th Cir. 2013) (unpub). Imposition of a 360-month sentence following convictions for sex trafficking of a minor and production of child pornography - 18 U.S.C. Sections, 1591(a)(1), (b)(2) and 2251(a) & (e) - was substantively reasonable, even though the defendant had only a minor criminal history, where the defendant lacked remorse, blamed the victim and continued to deny that he knew the victim’s age. The sentence was necessary to protect the public.

United States v. Lebowitz, 676 F.3d 1000 (11th Cir. 2012). The Eleventh Circuit found that a within guideline sentence of 320 months was substantively reasonable for production of child pornography and attempting to entice a child to engage in unlawful sexual activity, even though the district court noted that the defendant had a history of doing “many good things” and that his conduct was not the “most extreme.” The court found that the defendant, who was HIV positive, engaged in the “clandestine exposure of his minor victims to even a minimal risk of HIV” and this exposure was relevant to his offense conduct, and was therefore properly considered by the court.

United States v. Pugh, 515 F.3d 1179 (11th Cir. 2008). The Eleventh Circuit reversed a sentence of five years’ probation for a plea of knowingly possessing child pornography. The guideline range was 97-120 months in prison. The court held that the “probationary sentence utterly failed to adequately promote general deterrence, reflect the seriousness of [the defendant’s] offense, show respect for the law, or address in any way the relevant Guidelines policy statements and directives.”

L. D.C. CIRCUIT

United States v. Pyles, 862 F.3d 82 (D.C. Cir. 2017). In affirming the defendant’s within-guidelines sentence of 132 months for possession of child pornography and traveling with intent to engage in illicit sexual acts, the court held that the district court did not commit procedural error by not explicitly addressing each and every non-frivolous mitigation argument on the record when pronouncing the sentence. The D.C. Circuit held that, although a district court must consider the defendant’s non-frivolous mitigation arguments before imposing a sentence, it is not required to individually and expressly address each argument on the record if it gives a reasoned basis for the sentence.

United States v. Fry, 851 F.3d 1329 (D.C. Cir. 2017). The court found the within-guideline sentence of 108 months for possession of child pornography reasonable because the offense conduct involved more than possession. In the instant case, the defendant offered to give an undercover agent pornographic materials if the agent would allow him to watch the agent sexually abuse a victim. The court stated that this bartering behavior would have created a new victim and was therefore serious conduct.

United States v. Russell, 600 F.3d 631 (D.C. Cir. 2010). The appellate court upheld a sentence that included a 30-year supervised release term for a violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2423(b) as substantively reasonable. The appellate court found the special condition of the defendant’s supervised release which prohibited him from possessing or using a computer for any reason to be substantively unreasonable and not in keeping with the sentencing goals of specific deterrence and rehabilitation.
