I. INTRODUCTION

This primer is intended to provide an overview of the statutes, sentencing guidelines, and relevant case law relating to criminal antitrust topics and §2R1.1 (Bid-Rigging, Price-Fixing or Market-Allocation Agreements Among Competitors). It focuses primarily on application of the antitrust guidelines and related sentencing issues. Although the primer identifies some of the issues and cases related to the sentencing of antitrust offenses, it is not a comprehensive compilation of case law and it is not intended to be a substitute for independent research and analysis of primary authority.

Section 2R1.1 applies to violations of the antitrust laws. The agreements among competitors covered by §2R1.1 are almost invariably covert conspiracies that are intended to, and serve no purpose other than to, restrict output and raise prices. The agreements covered by this guideline are so plainly anticompetitive that they have been recognized as illegal per se (i.e., “without any inquiry in individual cases as to their actual competitive effect.”).<sup>1</sup> There is near universal agreement that restrictive agreements among competitors, such as horizontal price-fixing<sup>2</sup> (including bid-rigging<sup>3</sup>) and horizontal market-allocation,<sup>4</sup> can cause serious economic harm, although they are not unlawful in all countries. There is no consensus, however, about the harmfulness of other types of antitrust offenses, which are rarely prosecuted and may involve unsettled issues of law. Consequently, only one guideline, which deals with horizontal agreements in restraint of trade, has been promulgated.<sup>5</sup>

<sup>2</sup> United States v. McKesson & Robbins, Inc., 351 U.S. 305, 309 (1956) (holding horizontal price-fixing is a per se violation of the Sherman Act); Leegin Creative Leather Prods., Inc., v. PSKS, Inc., 551 U.S. 893 (2007) (distinguishing between horizontal agreements as per se unlawful and vertical agreements unlawful only if a “reason analysis” reveals the agreements unreasonably restrain trade).

<sup>3</sup> Bid-rigging is most commonly defined as an agreement between two or more competitors to eliminate, reduce, or interfere with competition for a job or contract that is to be awarded based on a competitive bidding process. See AM. BAR ASS’N, SAMPLE JURY INSTRUCTIONS IN CRIMINAL ANTITRUST CASES (1984) (Sample Jury Instructions). See also United States v. Joyce, 895 F.3d 673, 676 (9th Cir. 2018) (finding that bid-rigging, as a form of horizontal price-fixing, is a per se violation of the Sherman Act, and the per se rule is “applied when the practice facially appears to be one that would always or almost always tend to restrict competition and decrease output,” quoting NCAA v. Bd. of Regents of Univ. of Okla., 468 U.S. 85, 100 (1984)).

<sup>4</sup> Market-allocation behavior includes, inter alia, an agreement among potential competitors to divide specific customers or types of customers, products, or territories among themselves to prevent competitive supply. See U.S. DEP’T OF JUSTICE, PRICE FIXING, BID RIGGING, AND MARKET ALLOCATION SCHEMES: WHAT THEY ARE AND WHAT TO LOOK FOR (2015), <https://www.justice.gov/sites/default/files/atr/legacy/2007/10/24/211578.pdf> [hereinafter PRICE FIXING, BID RIGGING, AND MARKET ALLOCATION SCHEMES].

When the Commission promulgated §2R1.1, it stated that deterrence was the primary goal in sentencing antitrust offenses, deviating from its usual empirical approach, which relied on data drawn from sources like presentence investigation reports and United States Parole Commission guidelines and statistics.<sup>6</sup> Thus, the Commission intended that prison terms for antitrust offenders “should be much more common, and usually somewhat longer” than before the guidelines.<sup>7</sup>

The background commentary states that “the guidelines require a period of confinement in the majority of cases that are prosecuted, including all bid-rigging cases.” It also states that “[s]ubstantial fines are an essential part of the sentence,” and that most antitrust defendants have the resources and earning capacity to pay those fines.<sup>8</sup>

BID-RIGGING, PRICE-FIXING, OR MARKET-ALLOCATION AGREEMENTS AMONG COMPETITORS - §2R1.1

This section of the primer discusses the statutes, sentencing guidelines, and case law relating to bid-rigging, price-fixing, or market-allocation agreements among competitors.

II. STATUTORY SCHEME

The primary offenses sentenced under §2R1.1 are those prosecuted under the Sherman Antitrust Act, codified at 15 U.S.C. §§ 1–38. The Sherman Act (“Act”) prohibits every contract, combination, or conspiracy in unreasonable restraint of trade or commerce.<sup>9</sup> Specifically, the Act prohibits (i) an agreement; (ii) which unreasonably restrains competition; and (iii) which affects interstate commerce.<sup>10</sup> The Supreme Court has allowed for application of the Sherman Act if the government demonstrates that the activity is in interstate commerce or, if the activity is local in nature, it “has an effect on [including that] the data revealed inconsistencies in treatment, such as punishing economic crimes less severely than other apparently equivalent behavior.”).

See also USSG, Ch.1, Pt.A(1)(4)(d) (“Under pre-guidelines sentencing practice, courts sentenced to probation an inappropriately high percentage of offenders guilty of certain economic crimes, such as theft, tax evasion, antitrust offenses . . . that in the Commission’s view are serious.”).

some other appreciable activity demonstrably in interstate commerce.”<sup>11</sup>

“Conspiracies under the Sherman Act are on ‘the common-law footing;’ they are not dependent on the ‘doing of any act other than the act of conspiring’ as a condition of liability.”<sup>12</sup> The Supreme Court has limited the scope of the law, stating that “[the Act] is not intended to include all contracts in restraint of trade, but only those which are in unreasonable restraint thereof.”<sup>13</sup>

Violations of the Sherman Act are subject to a statutory ten-year maximum term of imprisonment.<sup>14</sup> In addition, individual defendants face a maximum fine of $1,000,000 while corporations face a maximum fine of $100,000,000.<sup>15</sup> Section 3 of the Act, also referenced to §2R1.1 in Appendix A, extends the protections of the Sherman Act to United States Territories and the District of Columbia, also punishable by ten years’ imprisonment, a maximum fine of $1,000,000 for individuals and a maximum fine of $100,000,000 for corporations.<sup>16</sup>

Appendix A also references to §2R1.1 violations of 18 U.S.C. § 1860 (Bids at Land Sales). Section 1860 criminalizes anti-competitive behavior at public sales of federal parcels of land and sets forth a statutory maximum punishment of not more than one year imprisonment, a $1,000 fine, or both.<sup>17</sup> agreements among competitors is 12.<sup>18</sup> The base offense level ensures that penalties for antitrust offenses will be coextensive with the base offense levels for sophisticated frauds sentenced under a different Chapter Two guideline.<sup>19</sup>

B. SPECIFIC OFFENSE CHARACTERISTICS

In addition to the base offense level, §2R1.1 contains two specific offense characteristics relating to:

- (1) Whether the conduct involved participation in an agreement to submit non-competitive bids;<sup>20</sup> and
- (2) Upward adjustments when the volume of commerce attributable to a defendant exceeds $1,000,000.<sup>21</sup>

Section 2R1.1 also provides special instructions regarding fines for both individuals<sup>22</sup> and organizations.<sup>23</sup>

IV. SPECIFIC GUIDELINE APPLICATION ISSUES

A. NON-COMPETITIVE BIDDING AGREEMENT - §2R1.1(b)(1)

If the conduct involved participation in an agreement to submit non-competitive bids, increase by 1 level.

The specific offense characteristic at §2R1.1(b)(1) is applicable in cases involving bid-rigging, which, as noted above,<sup>24</sup> generally involve an agreement between two or more competitors to eliminate, reduce, or interfere with competition for a job or contract that is to be awarded based on a competitive bidding process. Bid-rigging behavior includes, inter alia, an agreement among competitors about the prices to be bid, who should be the successful bidder, who should bid high, who should bid low, or who should refrain from bidding, or any other agreement with respect to bidding that affects, limits, or avoids competition among competitors.<sup>25</sup> The Commission recognized that relying solely on the volume of commerce could understate the measure of seriousness in some bid-rigging cases. For this reason, and consistent with pre-guidelines practice, the Commission has specified a 1-level increase for bid-rigging.<sup>26</sup>

Section 2R1.1(b)(1) uses the term “noncompetitive bids” but does not provide a definition, and circuit courts have disagreed on this issue. The Seventh Circuit found the term to be synonymous with the term “bid-rigging,” pointing to the background commentary which states the guideline has a 1-level increase for “bid-rigging.”<sup>27</sup> The court additionally stated the term “bid-rigging” is synonymous with “bid rotation,” which it found to be referenced in Application Note 6 as “complementary bids.”<sup>28</sup> The Fourth Circuit disagreed, finding instead the language in the enhancement is “broad and non-exclusive,” and not limited to bid rotation cases. That court further stated that “complementary bids” in the Application Note are a sub-category of bid-rigging.<sup>29</sup>

B. VOLUME OF COMMERCE - §2R1.1(b)(2)

If the volume of commerce attributable to the defendant was more than $1,000,000 adjust the offense level as follows:

	VOLUME OF COMMERCE (APPLY THE GREATEST)	ADJUSTMENT TO OFFENSE LEVEL
(A)	More than $1,000,000	add 2
(B)	More than $10,000,000	add 4
(C)	More than $50,000,000	add 6

(H)	More than $1,850,000,00	add 16 <sup>30</sup>

The Commission determined that tying the offense level to the scale or scope of the offense is important in order to ensure that the sanction is in fact punitive and that there is an incentive to desist from a violation once it has begun.<sup>31</sup> The offense levels are not based directly on the damage caused or profit made by the defendant because damages are difficult and time consuming to establish.<sup>32</sup> The Commission determined, however, that volume of commerce is an acceptable and more readily measurable substitute.<sup>33</sup> Volume of commerce, rather than loss, serves as the basis for offense level enhancements because damages are difficult and time consuming to determine, and the scale or scope of the offense as measured by the volume of commerce is an acceptable proxy for the harm caused by the defendant's conduct.<sup>34</sup>

The guideline provides at §2R1.1(b)(2) that, for purposes of this enhancement, the volume of commerce attributable to an individual participant in a conspiracy is "the volume of commerce done by him or his principal in goods or services that were affected by the violation,"<sup>35</sup> and multiple counts should be treated cumulatively.<sup>36</sup>

<sup>33</sup> Additionally, the limited empirical data available as to pre-guidelines practice showed that fines increased with the volume of commerce and the term of imprisonment probably did as well. See USSG §2R1.1, comment. (backg'd). See also United States v. Diaz, 731 F. <sup>35</sup> USSG §2R1.1(b)(2). In 2018, 34 of the 53 cases sentenced under §2R1.1 also received a 2-level enhancement under §2R1.1(b)(2)(A) for volume of commerce between $1,000,000 and $10,000,000. Another ten cases received a 4-level enhancement under §2R1.1(b)(2)(B) for volume of commerce between $10,000,000 and $50,000,000. Seven cases received no enhancement for the volume of commerce. See GUIDELINE CALCULATION BASED, supra note 26.

<sup>36</sup> USSG §2R1.1(b)(2). See also Giraudo, at *2 (noting although co-conspirators not liable for sales made by other co-conspirators by virtue of association, volume of commerce calculation includes commerce done by participants and principals, and law treats partnership as principal).

Courts have taken a variety of approaches to calculating the volume of commerce, depending on their interpretation of the phrase “affected by the violation” in §2R1.1(b)(2). The first circuit to address this issue was the Sixth Circuit, which held that the term “volume of affected commerce” that was “affected by the violation” includes all the sales made by the defendant within the scope of the conspiracy. A few years later, both the Second and the Seventh Circuits disagreed with the Sixth Circuit and held the term “volume of affected commerce” includes only those sales actually influenced by the conspiracy. After analyzing these three opinions, the Eleventh and the First Circuits held that there is a rebuttable presumption that all sales made by the defendant are included in the term “volume of affected commerce,” as discussed more fully below.

Specifically, in United States v. Hayter Oil Co., the Sixth Circuit defined the term “volume of affected commerce” to include “all sales of the specific types of goods or services which were made by the defendant or his principal during the period of the conspiracy, without regard to whether individual sales were made at the target price.”<sup>37</sup> In United States v. SKW Metals & Alloys, Inc., the Second Circuit disagreed with the approach taken by the Sixth Circuit to include all sales and held that “a price-fixing conspiracy that fails to influence market transactions notwithstanding overt acts sufficient to support criminal responsibility has affected no sales within the meaning of the Guidelines.”<sup>38</sup> In United States v. Andreas, the Seventh Circuit joined the Second Circuit to hold that “the purpose of the §2R1.1 enhancement is to gauge the harm inflicted by the illegal agreement . . . [t]heoretically, sales that were entirely unaffected did not harm consumers and therefore should not be counted for sentencing because they would not reflect the scale or scope of the offense.”<sup>39</sup>

Addressing the standards from each of the other circuits, in United States v. Giordano, the Eleventh Circuit held that “[o]nce the conspiracy is found to have been effective during a certain period, there arises a rebuttable presumption that all sales during that period were ‘affected by’ the conspiracy . . . The defendant may rebut that presumption by offering evidence that certain sales, even though made during a period when the conspiracy was effective, were not affected by the conspiracy.”<sup>40</sup> The First Circuit followed the Eleventh Circuit, in United States v. Peake, by holding that “[a]lthough there is a presumption that all sales made during the conspiracy were affected, and should therefore be included in the volume of commerce calculation, this is a presumption that the defendant may rebut by offering evidence that some sales were not affected.”<sup>41</sup>

For cases involving foreign transactions, 15 U.S.C. § 6a (Conduct involving trade or commerce with foreign nations), the Foreign Trade Antitrust Improvements Act (“FTAIA”), may control the determination of the volume of commerce. FTAIA generally excludes foreign transactions from consideration under the Sherman Act unless those foreign transactions: (1) are import commerce into the United States; or (2) have a direct, substantial, and reasonably foreseeable effect on American commerce that gives rise to an antitrust claim under another provision of title 15.<sup>42</sup>

C. SPECIAL INSTRUCTION FOR FINES FOR INDIVIDUALS - §2R1.1(c)

(1) For an individual, the guideline fine range shall be from one to five percent of the volume of commerce, but not less than $20,000.

In promulgating the antitrust guideline, the Commission stated that substantial fines are an essential part of the sentences.<sup>43</sup> In setting the fine for an individual defendant under §2R1.1(c)(1), the court should consider the extent of the defendant’s participation in the offense, the defendant’s role, and the defendant’s profits (including salary, bonuses, and career enhancement).<sup>44</sup> If the court finds a defendant unable to pay the guideline fine, the guidelines instruct that the court should impose community service in lieu of a portion of the fine,<sup>45</sup> stating that the community service should be equally as burdensome as a fine.<sup>46</sup> The commentary notes that it is the intent of the Commission that alternatives such as community confinement not be used to avoid imprisonment of antitrust offenders.<sup>47</sup>

D. SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS FOR FINES FOR ORGANIZATIONS - §2R1.1(d)

(1) In lieu of the pecuniary loss under subsection (a)(3) of §8C2.4 (Base Fine), use 20 percent of the volume of affected commerce.

(2) When applying §8C2.6 (Minimum and Maximum Multipliers), neither the minimum nor maximum multiplier shall be less than 0.75.

(3) In a bid-rigging case in which the organization submitted one or more complementary bids,<sup>48</sup> use as the organization's volume of commerce the greater of (A) the volume of commerce done by the organization in the goods or services that were affected by the violation, or (B) the largest contract on which the organization submitted a complementary bid in connection with the bid-rigging conspiracy.

Chapter Eight (Sentencing of Organizations) of the Guidelines Manual sets forth the guidelines and policy statements that apply when the defendant is an organization and provides the criteria by which organizations convicted of federal criminal offenses will be punished.<sup>49</sup> Section 8C2.1 (Applicability of Fine Guidelines) specifies that the provisions of §§8C2.2 through 8C2.9, which provide the rules for calculating the fine range for organizations, apply to antitrust offenses. Using these guidelines, the court must first determine the base fine amount by either using the table at §8C2.4(d) (Base Fine), using pecuniary gain, or using pecuniary loss, whichever is greatest. However, §8C2.4(b) contains an exception instructing that where the offense guideline in Chapter Two contains a special instruction for organizational fines, the court shall apply that special instruction. Section 2R1.1 includes such a special instruction and directs courts to calculate the organizational fines based on 20 percent of the volume of affected commerce.<sup>50</sup> The Commission established this 20 percent figure based on its estimate “that the average gain from price-fixing is 10 percent of the selling price.”<sup>51</sup>

Once the base fine is determined, the court must then determine the fine range using the minimum and maximum multipliers in Chapter 8.<sup>52</sup> In most cases, these multipliers range from 0.05 to 4.00,<sup>53</sup> depending on the defendant's culpability score.<sup>54</sup> In

<sup>48</sup> Complementary bidding occurs “when some competitors agree to submit bids that either are too high to be accepted or contain special terms that will not be acceptable to the buyer,” bids that are not intended to secure acceptance by the buyer but instead to give the appearance of competitive bidding. See PRICE FIXING, BID RIGGING, AND MARKET ALLOCATION SCHEMES, supra note 4, at 2.

<sup>50</sup> USSG §2R1.1(d)(1). Relatedly, individual fines are also calculated using volume of commerce. See §2R1.1(c)(1) (instructing courts to set a fine of one to five percent of the volume of commerce, with a floor of $20,000).

<sup>51</sup> See USSG §2R1.1, comment. (n.3) (“Because the loss [] exceeds the gain [in price-fixing, the guidelines mandate] that 20 percent of the volume of affected commerce is to be used in lieu of the pecuniary loss under §8C2.4(a)(3).”).

<sup>54</sup> See USSG §8C2.5 (Culpability Score). The culpability score is the baseline used to determine a sentence for an organization, and adds points if an organization was involved in or tolerated criminal activity, if it had a prior history, or a prior violation of an order or obstruction of justice. In addition, points are subtracted for antitrust cases, however, the Commission established a minimum fine multiplier in all organizational antitrust cases. This minimum fine multiplier ensures that no matter what mitigating steps a corporation has taken, its fine can never be less than 75 percent of the total amount otherwise applicable under the guidelines.<sup>55</sup>

The commentary to §2R1.1 explains the reason for focusing on the volume of commerce, rather than the gain or loss, noting that the average gain from price-fixing is estimated at a mere ten percent of the sales price, while the amount of loss fails to capture intangible harms such as consumers priced out by the anti-competitive behavior.<sup>56</sup> Relying on the affected volume of commerce avoids the time and expense needed to calculate the actual gain or loss, and in cases in which the behavior appears to be either substantially more or substantially less than the estimated ten percent figure, the court is encouraged to consider that factor when selecting the fine within the established range.<sup>57</sup> Another factor for the court to consider in setting the appropriate fine is the tendency of the degree of price-fixing to decline as the volume of commerce increases.<sup>58</sup>

V. CHAPTER THREE ADJUSTMENTS

A. SECTION 2R1.1 APPLICATION NOTE 1; §§3B1.1; 3B1.2; 3C1.1

Application of Chapter Three (Adjustments) may be relevant in determining the seriousness of the defendant's offense. For example, if a sales manager organizes or leads the price-fixing activity of five or more participants, the 4-level increase at §3B1.1(a) should be applied to reflect the defendant's aggravated role in the offense.<sup>59</sup> For purposes organizations that have effective compliance and ethics programs and which self-report, cooperate with authorities, or accept responsibility. Id.

<sup>55</sup> See USSG §2R1.1(d)(2). The Commission added this 75% floor to §2R1.1 when it first promulgated the organizational guidelines. See USSG App. C, amend. 422 (effective Nov. 1, 1991). As the Commission noted in the background commentary added at that time, "this multiplier, which requires a minimum fine of 15 percent of the volume of commerce for the least serious case, was selected to provide an effective deterrent to antitrust offenses." The Commission further noted that "a minimum multiplier of at least 0.75 ensures that fines imposed in antitrust cases will exceed the average monopoly overcharge." See USSG §2R1.1, comment. (backg'd.).

<sup>56</sup> USSG §2R1.1, comment. (n.3) ("The loss from price-fixing exceeds the gain because, among other things, injury is inflicted upon consumers who are unable or for other reasons do not buy the product at the higher prices.").

of applying §3B1.2, an individual defendant should be considered for a mitigating role adjustment only if he were responsible in some minor way for his firm's participation in the conspiracy.<sup>60</sup>

Application Note 1 clarifies the potential relevance of certain enhancements in determining the seriousness of the defendant's offense and gives guidance on the types of roles in an antitrust conspiracy that will satisfy the criteria for Chapter Three adjustments. It also suggests that the mitigating role adjustment should be applied more narrowly than in other circumstances, and only when the defendant was responsible only in some minor way for the firm's participation in the conspiracy.

The commentary further suggests that prison terms for defendants under §2R1.1 should be both much more common and somewhat longer than in pre-guidelines practice.<sup>61</sup>

B. GROUPING; §3D1.2 (GROUPS OF CLOSELY RELATED COUNTS)
